Final Vote on Tariff in House Today

BARE DELAY IN FIGHTING FIRE ON BLAZING LINER

Today

New Tariff
Cheaper Diamonds, Pearls
Power, More of It
Higher Speed, on Water

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE NEW TARIFF passes the Senate, and one of the richest, most forceful men in Wall Street says:

"That means the election of a Democrat in 1932."

It depends on the nomination. Some things are more important to the voters than the tariff.

Farmers looking through the increased rates will find an effort to help them, adding a hundred per cent to the duty on cream, increasing heavily duties on others of his products.

Some will be glad to hear that the duty on pearls and diamonds has been cut in two.

This is done not to oblige those that want jewelry, but to diminish smuggling by making it less profitable.

Important to the human race are physical power and mental power. Mental power has stood still for about 2000 years. Physical power is constantly increasing.

A German has found a way to increase the power of engines, gasoline, Diesel or steam, from 20 to 60 per cent. His new kind of turbine uses the power of exhaust gases.

Lufthansa, great German air company, has ordered a Diesel engine built on the new plan, for airplane experiment. Fuel oil will be used.

Germany leads the world in mechanical invention, and in chemistry.

Professor Claude, one of the world's most distinguished physicists, informs the French Academy of Science that he is making progress in his effort to utilize power from the ocean.

A small fraction of the tide's power would make all other power unnecessary. The tides, once harnessed, would run our machinery as long as the sun and moon combine to raise and drop the waters of the ocean.

Professor Claude's experiments do not use the warm water at the surface of tropical seas to operate a turbine, the water being converted to steam by means of a vacuum. Cold water from the depths of the sea is used to re-condense the steam, and renew the vacuum.

It is complicated for the non-scientific mind, but if there is "an inexhaustible store of power in tropical sea water," that certainly will make a great difference to enormous populations living near the Equator in comparative idleness.

The death of Sir Henry Segrave, brilliant, courageous Englishman, will be regretted everywhere.

He had developed new speeds in motorboats and automobiles, and was killed yesterday when a boat in which he was going 100 miles an hour turned over and sank.

Maj. Segrave had shown that man's speed afloat can be greatly increased. Nature supplies, in water, perfect, ball-bearing surface, the drops of water rolling one over the other, without friction.

A water speed of 500 miles an hour could be obtained with the right ship construction and adequate application of power.

New ideas are needed in ship construction, in screws, wheels, or other driving power.

Budapest is enjoying a congress of delegates from various nations opposed to prohibition. Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, distinguish British surgeon, says alcohol has made man kind, pleasanter, better, easier to live with. And wine will be "enjoyed" as long as the race of man lasts.

He attributes our American crime wave to the Volstead act, pointing out that crime in Europe, with no prohibition, is steadily decreasing.

The amazing thing is not that alcohol is "pleasant," but that, as a rule, nations and individuals that use no alcohol have not been among the most successful.

Examine an accepted list of the 1000 greatest men in history. You will not find 10 teetotalers.

Among nations, you see 300,000,000 non-alcoholic Asiatics in India, easily held down by a small crowd of Englishmen, whom prohibition interests not in the least.

Mr. Lucas, federal trade commissioner, says purchasers of $29,000,000 worth of securities issued by the W. B. Foshay Co., of Delaware and Minnesota, will get exactly NOTHING.

Possibly somebody will go to jail.

What about companies that, in the insane gambling period, issued and sold stocks in single companies up to five, six, seven hundred million and more, outrageously watered, causing buyers to lose hundreds of millions, instead of $29,000,000? Will anything happen to them? No, they are wholesalers.

HOUSE VOTES BY SUNSET ON TARIFF

Majority of 85 Is in Sight for Passage; Hoover to Sign, With "Reservations"

Washington, June 14 (INS)—Determined to relieve the nation of the depressing uncertainty of tariff legislation, the House prepared to pass the "billion" dollar Hawley-Smoot tariff bill before sunset today and lay it on President Hoover's doorstep Monday morning for approval or veto.

Taking no chances, Republican rulers of the House drafted an ironclad rule against filibuster or other delays.

The House vote will come upon adoption of the unified conference report, which was accepted by the Senate, 44 to 42, yesterday. The House majority was expected to be about 85, with some Western Republicans deserting the administration and some Southern Democrats voting for the bill.

GARNER LEADS ATTACK

President Hoover, it was said by administration leaders, will sign the bill. After referring it to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who administers the tariff law, and receiving a favorable report the Chief Executive is expected to make some reservations and resort to his flexible tariff powers for adjustments.

A final assault upon the bill was planned by the Democrats, led by Representative John N. Garner of Texas. Since the House has already approved most of the rates, Garner was expected to direct his fire at the flexible tariff clauses, lumber, cement and sugar rates.

The House leaders decided to permit three hours of debate, in addition to limited debate on the rule, before a roll call is taken.

FIND WOMAN, 11 MEN IN RAID ON FANEUIL CLUB

Police in Early Morning Drive Charge They Found Liquor, Some of It Poured Out

Eleven men and one woman, found by police in the quarters of the Faneuil Hall Club, Inc., in Friend st., during a raid shortly after 5 this morning, face the possibility of being called before court as witnesses in action against the club.

The names of the 12 were taken by police in accordance with instructions recently issued by Commissioner Hultman for police to list occupants of places raided for liquor with a view to summoning them to testify.

The raiders were headed by Capt. John J. Rooney, transferred in the recent police shakeup from South Boston to the North End. Armed with sledge hammers and axes, it took the raiders 20 minutes to batter down the doors at the club.

On entering they found the 11 men and the woman waiting as a reception committee. Liquor, police said, had been spilled on the floor while they were battreing down the door. Some of this was sponged in handkerchiefs by police.

Charges of keeping and exposing against James Munto of Prince st., North End, were continued until Friday in court today to permit state chemists to make an analysis of the liquid sponged up.

Bottles containing beer and whiskey, was said by police to have been found in an areaway in the rear of the club. One occupant was arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

British Winners in Wightman Cup Finals

Wimbledon, Eng., June 14—The Satars and Stripes dipped to British tennis supremacy here today, when England, fighting in a bitter struggle, won the Wightman Cup by four matches to three in the eighth annual playoff of the tournament.

Britain's victory, by means of which the number of triumph through the years was evened to four each, came in a titanic doubles match between Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs against Kitty McKane Godfree and Mrs. Phoebe Watson.

With everything at stake in this latch match of the day, Mrs. Godfree and Mrs. Watson used everything at their command and captured the coveted cup by the score of 7—5, 1—6, 6—4.

EX-YD MAN WED IN 'DUGOUT'

The "Dugout," filled with mementoes of the World War, on the estate of Gen. Clarence R. Edwards in Westwood, was the scene today of the marriage of a medical officer who served under the general in the 26th Division in France.

The former army officer who became her husband is Dr. Francis Maurillo of Medford. His bride was Miss Erica Jannsen of Medford.

Gen. Edwards was a witness at the ceremony and afterwards was host at a wedding feast in his home.

The "Dugout" is a replica of the dugouts on the front lines in France during the war.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Carl C. Clarke, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Medford.

Dr. Maurillo, who is a graduate of Brown, the Harvard Medical School and the University of Naples, first served with the 104th Field Artillery overseas and later with the medical corps of the 101st infantry.

NO WATER IN HOSE FOR FIFTEEN MINUTES

Open Compartment Shut Off Access to the Fairfax's Pumps, Officer Testifies

Evidence of several minutes' delay in turning on water for fire pumps, and testimony the liner's radio antenna was up for half an hour after the collision, today featured the federal probe of the Fairfax-Pinthis sea disaster.

The session adjourned at noon until Monday morning, and it was announced a hearing will be opened at Norfolk, Va., to take testimony of marines and United States seamen on the same date.

Second Engineer John T. French and Able Seaman Thomas Farrington of the Fairfax gave the testimony regarding the delay in turning on the water, and Farrington told of the collapse of the radio antenna.

Captain Brooks of the Fairfax has insisted that he ordered SOS messages sent out, but no one heard them.

The chief radio operator has testified he sent out an SOS message, but that the antenna fell down soon after the collision.

TELLS OF DELAY

Other highlights were:

1—Testimony of Capt. Frederic A. Gower, port captain for the owners of the tanker, that three of her crew died from drowning because of lack of rescuing lifeboats.

2—Admission by Engineer French that flames in a carelessly-opened compartment blocked entrance to the engine room, causing sufficient delay in turning on water to permit several passengers to leap overboard.

3—Testimony by Manuel Silva, seaman, that a woman passenger aided him for 20 minutes in fighting fire on the starboard bow of the liner.

4—Testimony by Seaman Farrington that after going to several fire pumps and finding no water, he eventually turned on the water himself at a pump on the after deck.

Farrington testified he was playing a hose aft when he saw the truck carrying the radio antenna burning, and soon afterwards the aerial came down.

The seaman admitted he had run around the ship a good deal before this happened, and that it might

FAIRFAX OFFICER BARES DELAY IN GETTING WATER IN FIRE HOSE

FOUND WAY TO PUMPS WAS BLOCKED

Seaman Tells How a Woman Helped Fight Flames for 20 Minutes

WAITED FOR WATER

Farrington, who said he was reading in the windlass room at the time of the collision, testified he hurried on deck and went to his fire station, No. 1 on the boat deck. He said he turned on the valve and waited 15 or 20 minutes, but no water flowed.

The seaman said he went to the "Glory Hole" to tell others of the crew there was a fire on board, returned to the boat deck, laid more hose and waited for orders which never came.

"I went to the forecastle, got a life belt and then went aft," testified Farrington, an intelligent seaman. "There was hose stretched there but no water. I started back to the deck pump and turned it on full force, then I went to the promenade deck aft, and stretched more hose and turned one on the fire."

It was at this time, a lapse of some 30 minutes after the crash, that Farrington said he saw the radio antenna fail.

The witness admitted he was "scared to death" but controlled himself. He said he saw both passengers and crew running around hysterically.

Both Farrington and all other witnesses denied seeing any evidence of violence or lack of discipline on the part of the crew.

Testimony regarding delay in turning on water with which to fight the flames had previously been given by Second Engineer French, who eventually managed to fight his way into the engine room and turn it on.

Engineer French's testimony was the most dramatic and sensational of the morning session.

He told of going on deck immediately after the collision, where he met a fireman looking for life preservers, and joined him. They broke into a room and got preservers for themselves, and then French gave one to a male passenger.

"There was a lot of smoke and fire near where we were standing," he said, "and we walked aft. The passenger called a woman by name. We saw a fall hanging from the boat deck. The man climbed over the railing and grabbed the rope, calling for the woman to follow him. I grabbed him by the wrist and told him he'd better not go."

COULDN'T GET WATER

The passenger shook off French's restraining hand, however, and urging the woman to follow him, dropped into the water. French said he tried to "persuade" the woman not to go, but "she fought me off and lowered herself by the rope into the water." The witness did not see them again.

He said he then picked up a hose and found the water was not running. He started for the engine room to turn it on, he testified, but entrance was cut off by flames sweeping through a compartment.

In response to questions the witness said the compartment was a lower gangway, only the upper half of which was open, apparently for ventilation.

"If that upper half had been closed," he was asked, 'could entrance have been made to the engine room?"

"I think so," he replied.

French said by the time he managed to get into the engine room and turn on the water 10 or 15 minutes had elapsed.

Manuel Silva, able seaman of the Fairfax, told of how a woman passenger stood beside him and manned a hose line for 20 minutes until they had a fire on the starboard bow under control. The witness said he did not see any navy men or other passengers helping, nor did he witness any lack of discipline on the part of the crew.

Has Positive Proof of Sinking of the Printhis

Capt. Gower was called to the stand and questioned by Capt. Lyons.

Q.—Have you any positive proof, either through equipment, bodies or boats that it was the Pinthis which was sunk by the Fairfax? A.—Yes.

Q.—What have you that is positive proof it was the Pinthis? A.—The bodies of the master, second officer and a seaman.

Q.—Anything else? A.—I understand that a lifeboat from the Pinthis is at Nantasket, but haven't seen it.

Capt. Lyons instructed the witness to procure the nameplate from the lifeboat and send it to the inspectors.

Capt. Gower said he had ordered the life boat sent to New York, but would see the instructions of Capt. Lyons were carried out.

Q.—By Supervisor General Hoover: Did you see these bodies? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were they burned? A.—Not a bit.

Q.—Did you see them closely? A.—I felt them with my own hands. I opened their eyes and their mouths.

Q.—How did they die? A.—The doctor said they lost their lives by drowning.

Q.—Who was the doctor? A.—The doctor at the morgue, I think he said his name was Magrath.

Q.—As a matter of record will you give us the name of the master of the Pinthis? A.—Albert B. Jones, 971 High st., Fall River. He is being buried this afternoon.

NO MARK ON BODIES

Q.—What was the name of the second officer? A.—Charles Weisser.

Q.—What was the seaman's name? A.—J. Copy of New Bedford.

Q.—Were you able to determine from the bodies what time they went into the water? A.—I don't think they were in very long. There was not a mark or bruise on them.

The next witness was Third Officer A. J. Powell, recalled for the third time. Powell was the officer said to have been involved in an altercation with a marine, but who denied this when on the witness stand previously. There was testimony at yesterday's hearing that a marine had cut the rope of the fall of lifeboat No. 7 with an axe, when Powell was attempting to lower the boat onto the main deck.

Q.—During the loading or unloading of lifeboat No. 7 did you see a man cut the lifeboat fall?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—When did you learn it had been cut? A.—Not until the Gloucester had left us.

Q.—Were you near lifeboat No. 7? A.—I was at the bow of No. 5, which is near the stern of No. 7.

Q.—Was No. 7 fully loaded? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Did anybody tell you that the fall of No. 7 had been cut? A.—No.

Q.—Did you hear the testimony of the Second Steward, yesterday? A.—No.

Q.—He said you hoisted No. 7 lifeboat. A.—I did not.

SAMPLE OF ROPE

Q.—(By Capt. Lyons) When this board visited the Fairfax last night did you see them take a sample of the rope on the fall of lifeboat No. 7? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did it look like? A.—It looked like it had been cut.

Second Engineer John T. French, of the Fairfax was the next witness called. He testified that immediately after the collision he went on deck and the first person he met was a fireman looking for a life preserver.

"The fireman and I broke into a room, got life preservers for ourselves," he said. "Then a passenger came up and I gave him one. There was a lot of smoke and fire near where we were standing and we walked aft. The passenger called a woman by name, I've forgotten the name. We saw a fall hanging from the boat deck, a man climbed over the railing and grabbed the rope and called for the woman to follow him. I grabbed him by the wrist and told him he'd better not go.

"He insisted and kept calling for the woman to follow him. He lowered himself for some distance and then dropped into the water. The woman started to follow and I tried to persuade her not to go. She fought me off and lowered herself by the rope into the water. The ship started forward and the rope swung aft.

TOLD THEM TO WAIT

"I took hold of the rope to find if they were still there. They were, and about a minute later I went back and took hold of the rope again, but they were gone."

Q. (by Stewart)—Was it necessary for them to go over the side? A.—Well, that was at the worst of the flames and smoke. It was not necessary, I realize now. I told them maybe we'd all have to go, but to wait for me."

The witness then said he picked up a hose and found the water wasn't running. He went below to the engine room but was unable at first to gain admission. He explained that a compartment was opened, permitting flames and smoke to sweep through and cut off entrance to the engine room. He returned later and by that time the smoke and fire had cleared somewhat, and he was able to start the fire pump to which some of the hose lines were connected.

Q.—What is this port compartment that was open? A.—It is a lower gangway.

Q.—Was it entirely open? A.—Only the upper half.

Q.—Why was it open? A.—For ventilation, I suppose.

Q.—If that upper half had been closed could entrance have been made to the engine room? A.—I think so.

French said 10 or 15 minutes elapsed between the time of the collision and the time that he started the fire pump. He said that discipline was good among the crew and that he saw no evidence of panic.

Testimony that a white woman had stood beside him and manned a hose line for 20 minutes until they both had the fire on the starboard bow under control, was offered by Manuel Silva, able seaman on the Fairfax.

Silva testified he was in bed when the collision occurred, that he heard the bells ring warning of the fire, that he ran upon deck and, assisted by the woman, extinguished the fire.

He denied that he saw any of the Negroes jumping into the lifeboats or running about. He denied that he saw any sailors or marines while the excitement on the ship was at its height.

SAW NO NAVY MEN

Q. (by Capt. Lyons)—Where were you when the collision occurred? A.—I was in my bunk.

Q.—What did you do? I ran upstairs, got some hose and tried to put the fire out.

Q.—Who got the hose out? A.—I did.

Q.—Who turned on the valve? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you see any passengers helping? A.—Yes, sir, I saw one woman standing beside me with the hose, helping to put out the fire.

Q.—How long did that take? A.—It must have been 20 minutes.

Q.—Did you see any navy men there? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You didn't see anybody help you out but this woman? A.—No, sir.

Thomas Farrington, able seaman, testified that he had been going to sea for 10 years. Of the Fairfax seaman, who have already testified Farrington appeared to be by far the most intelligent. He was asked to give a detailed account of what he had seen and done at the time of the collision.

"I was reading in the windless room, off forecastle," said the witness, "when I felt the jar of the collision. I went up on deck and saw fire and went to my fire station, No. 1, on the boat deck. I stretched the hose near the bridge, turned the valve wide open.

"I waited 15 or 20 minutes but no water came. I left the hose and went to the "Glory Hole" to tell the boys there was a fire. Then I went to the boat deck laid some more hose and waited for orders. There was nothing doing there so I went to the forecastle, got a life belt and then went aft. There was hose stretched there but no water.

"I started back to the deck pump and turned it on full force, then I went to the promenade deck, aft, and stretched more hose and turned one on the fire."

Q.—Did you see the radio antenna on fire? A.—I saw it fall when I was playing the hose aft. I saw the truck burning and soon afterwards the aerial came down.

SAW ONE BURNED

Q.—Did you see any of the passengers that were burned? A.—I only saw one, that was a woman, and they were moving her on a stretcher to the Gloucester when I saw her.

Q.—Did you see any of the crew taking lifeboats away from the passengers. A.—No.

Q.—There was hose stretched, but not water? A.—That's right.

Q.—How much time do you think elapsed from the time of the crash until you turned on the after pump? A.—Well, the things that I did would have taken me less than 15 minutes ordinarily, but with the fire and smoke I had to stop once in a while before I could go further.

Q.—So you think it was more than 15 minutes before you turned on the after pump? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then it was much more than 15 minutes after the collision when the radio antenna went down? A.—Yes, much more.

Q.—It might have been a half hour before the antenna went down? A.—Yes.

Sailor Swam Under Water to Escape Inferno of Oil

Out of the tales of horror and pathos that followed the crash of the S. S. Fairfax and the tanker Pinthis, the story of Quartermaster J. V. Eubank of the Fairfax stands forth as one of the epics of maritime lore.

Eubank took the stand at the federal hearing in the Appraisers Stores yesterday, and under questioning related, with simplicity and reality, the grim horror that faced passengers and crew given the choice of death by water or by fire.

Eubank's recital follows:

SAW TANKER'S STACK

Q.—What happened after this collision with the PINTHIS?

A.—I just came off watch. I was relieved at 2 minutes of 7 and went to my room. Went down on deck and went up to the main deck door where you go down to the main deck and I looked again and I saw the smokestack.

There was a marine on deck and I told him "we are going to have an accident, look at that ship." By that time she struck. I went up to my room. Tried to get to my room to call some of the quartermasters who were asleep. Didn't get any further than the boat deck.

Almost got to the dance hall when smoke and flames came along. I started to my lifeboat, which was No. 9, the last one on the starboard side, and tried to get the gripes off of her.

LEAPS INTO SEA

As soon as I got to her the flames were going over her and I went down to the promenade deck. The mate came and I asked him did he call the quartermaster. He never answered me. The other quartermaster came and I asked him had he called the other quartermaster and he said "yes, he is up on deck. He is all right." We both walked down the steps together and walked over to the rail. I started forward to go to my stateroom and get a life preserver. The smoke and flame was heading me off again. I went back and it got so dense I couldn't see anybody.

I started strangling with smoke. I started to go over the rail and somebody held me back. A woman threw her arms around me and tried to get me to jump overboard and carry her with me. I loosened her hold. Broke loose from two of them and got over to the rail and got down to the hurricane deck. I tried to go forward again.

Just as I started forward my clothing got on fire. Then I went to the rail and tried to stay there but couldn't, so I had to jump overboard. I jumped overboard and used the log line on the starboard side. I got on it. Five or six on it then. I knew it was going to break with so many on it, so I let go and tried to get on the rudder.

SWIMS UNDER FLAMES

I missed the rudder the first time. Something struck my foot. It was the propeller. I was sort of dazed. When I came to I saw a blaze about my head and I saw the rudder. Climbed up on it. I was all right then and I hollered to everybody to come and get hold of my feet and hang on. Nobody came. One boy started to but he went down before he got to me.

Then I stayed on the rudder until the ship started ahead. Engines started ahead and went through all this fire and it got so bad it burned me and I had to let go. The fire was burning so bad I had to dive. I dove and swam under water for 5 feet and came up.

I had to come up in a place two feet square to get some air. Closed in with fog and I went down again and swam under water for 5 more feet and I came up again and it was all clear. I didn't have any life preserver of my own on to use. I saw these people about 50 feet away from me. I made for them. I got to them and it was this navy officer.

Him and his wife. I asked him before I got to him would he give me a life preserver and he said "yes." When I got where the lieutenant was I gave up and went down. He pulled me up. The next time I came to he told me to get away from him. Said he was drowning:

So I left him and got away five feet or so.

I noticed there was somebody else. I looked down and saw the waiter with his white coat on. I laid his face up and looked to see who it was and it was one of the boys named Seeley. I shook him to see if he was alive, but he didn't move and struck him in the face. He still didn't move, so I took his life preserver off. It took me 20 minutes.

LIFE BOAT BURNING

I saw this lifeboat afire. I told this sailor and his wife: "All hands go to the lifeboat." the only chance we had. He said: "No, sir, we are going to stay here, we won't go to the lifeboat." I said: "Well, I am going." I made for the lifeboat. Took an hour and one-half to get there. After I got there, two waiters, two boys, were hanging on. Two colored boys. I told them both to hang on. One of them let go before I could help him. I managed to get in.

Boat was in a light blaze. Took my hand and threw water all around. Then she was almost sunk and I started to bale her out. The boy was screaming to me to help him from drowning. I told him to wait until I got some water out. If I tried to get him in then we would sink. I got about half the water out and got him in and told him to bale. He couldn't bale any. We baled until I got sick. I got sick and laid down in the bottom. I became unconscious. I don't know what time it was when I came to. When I came to I heard the FAIRFAX blowing four long whistles. Heard the steamer blowing four long whistles.

STUFF SHIRTS IN LEAK

Then we discovered that the boat started leaking again. The boat plug had burned out. I tore our shirts off and put it in the hole. She had a wooden stem and that was burned through. The water was coming in. I didn't bother with that. That would make it all the worse. So I took the tanks. Some of them, and threw them overboard. Some of them half full with water and put them back on the stern and got back in myself and kept her bow out of the water. Then we started to holler for help. One ship passed us close on his port side. Didn't hear us.

Some Diesel boat passed us and didn't hear us. Then we drifted until about 12 o'clock when I took a hatchet, ripped a can open and made a sail. A sort of sail, which I put up in the bow. I ripped some boards at the bottom that were burned and tried to make some paddles. They broke when I started to paddle. While I was thinking what to do then I looked up and saw this Gloucester fishing smack. I started to holler.

Joe started hollering. He was so hoarse. I couldn't either. So we took a hatchet and threw it on the can and tried to attract attention. Then he lowered a dory and came and took us out in a lifeboat and brought us in to Boston.

FINAL VOTE ON TARIFF TODAY

bill will bring "better times" in 30 days and prosperity within a year was endorsed by many leaders.

"I think the end of uncertainty over the tariff will aid business," said Representative Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader. "The delay in final action has been criminal"

Representative Crowther, Republican, New York, member of the ways and means committee, said:

"I believe passage of the bill will revive activities almost immediately. A spirit of general confidence will result."

Representative Hauger, Republica, Iowa, chairman of the agricultural committee, said:

"The rates are the best agriculture has ever had in a tariff bill, and if the Federal Farm Board will take steps to make these rates effective, it will aid agriculture."

"WORST EVER," SAYS CRISP

Representative Crisp, Democrat, Georgia, member of the ways and means committee, said:

"In my judgment this is the worst tariff bill ever enacted by Congress. In my opinion it will have a disastrous economic effect.

"It is an attempt to plug up all the holes where any competitive manufactured articles enter the country. It means that imports will be limited to agricultural products and to non-competitive articles like rubber, silk, spices. I think it will interfere with our foreign trade, and will hurt the farmer."

Representative Rainey, Democrat, Illinois, said:

"It will increase the cost of living hundreds of millions a year."

Pope to Leave Vatican for Ceremonies June 22

Rome, June 14 — For the first time in more than half a century a Supreme Pontiff of the Catholic Church will appear outside the Vatican on June 22 when Pope Pius XI makes his long awaited exit.

Pope Pius

The announcement of the Pope's intention was greeted with enthusiasm by members of the Vatican staff and the general public of Rome. The occasion is the canonization ceremonies attending the elevation to sainthood of a Spanish and an Italian nun.

His Holiness will leave the Vatican City by the great bronze door of the newly-created domain and enter St. Peter's Church by the front entrance of that edifice.

It had been expected that the Pope would take this step immediately after the completion of the Italian-Vatican accord.

Judge Wilson Takes Office in Concord Today

With ceremonies consistent with the dignity of the office he is to assume, Judge Howard A. Wilson will be installed as justice of the Concord District Court in the court house today.

Judge Wilson

Judge Prescott Keyes, whose retirement was announced last Sunday, and Judge Michael J. Connolly of the Waltham District Court will have a prominent part in the ceremony.

Judge Wilson's commission is to be read by Edward F. Loughl, clerk of court. Following the there will be a brief installation service. Then Judge Wilson will take over his new duties immediately.

Rev. Ernest Lyman Mills, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Maynard, of which the new justice is a member, will offer the invocation.

Deposed Albanian Premier Will Return to Boston

Tirana, Albania, June 14—Bishop Fan Noli, whose stormy political career as premier of Albania ended with his overthrow and subsequent exile, has announced that he is through with politics and will return to Boston, Mass., to resume ecclesiastical work.

Bishop Fan Noll

The bishop founded the Christian Albanian Church in Boston in in 1908. During his work there he found time to pursue a course of studies at Harvard University, from which he received an A. B. degree in 1912.

On his return to his native land during the trying post war days he succeeded in obtaining the office of premier during the latter part of 1924. He remained in power for a short while but was overthrown by Zogu and exiled.

School for Teachers Opened by Queen Mary

London, June 14—Queen Mary was guest of honor at the ceremonies attending the opening of the new school at Deptford for training teachers to become research workers in the poorer districts of the metropolis.

Lady Astor

The school has been financed mainly through the generosity of Lord and Lady Astor, whose substantial contributions have been responsible for the many artistically furnished study-bedrooms in the building.

Lady Astor informed the Queen that she had received much help from American philanthropists, including Adolph S. Ochs.

Queen Mary visited all the shelters of the school. The children were almost as proud of new sandals presented to them for the occasion by a local shoemaker as they were of their royal visitor.

QUEEN MARIE PAVES WAY TO RECONCILE CAROL AND HELENE

PLANS ROYAL FAMILY REUNION

Mme. Lupescu Will Return to Bucharest According to King's Pledges

Bucharest, June 14 (AP)—The hands of Queen Marie were believed today to have smoothed the difficulties that have kept King Carol II and Queen Helene apart and to have prepared them for a reconciliation.

Helena was prevented by a slight cold from greeting Marie at the railway station when Marie arrived Thursday from Germany. So yesterday Marie called on her daughter-in-law.

Later it was announced that when Helene recovered from her indisposition the entire royal family will hold a reunion at the palace of Queen Marie. Court circles believe this would bring about the reconciliation of Carol and has Attican wife, who divorced him when he left her to live in exile in Paris with Madame Magda Lupescu.

Mme. Lupescu to Start for Bucharest Tomorrow

London, June 14 (AP)—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Berne, Switzerland, today said Mme. Lupescu is going back to Bucharest accompanied by two Rumanian officers, friends of King Carol.

Before Carol started for Bucharest to reclaim the crown, the dispatch said, he went to Mme. Lupescu and informed her the interests of Rumania made it imperative that he return.

Mme. Lupescu approached him timidly, and throwing her arms around his neck, sobbed her resignation with a wish always to be remembered in his thoughts.

"I know you must go, but when you are back in Bucharest you'll forget me as you have forgotten the others," she is quoted as saying.

Carol answered with a vow that he would never forget her, and promised the arrangement whereby she would return to Rumania and be always provided for.

CUSTOMSHOUSE NETS 3 MILLION

Customs receipts of more than $3,000,000 poured into the Boston Customs House today in the wake of the passage of the tariff bill in the Senate at Washington.

Importers, many of them paying 40 and 50 bills, besieged the office of George E. Symonds, cashier, paying for release of goods held in bonded warehouses and subject to duties at time of withdrawal.

Commodities consisting mostly of sugar and wolo were withdrawn so they might be listed as "received" before the higher tariff is placed in effect.

One firm of importers sent a check for more than $1,000,000 to release a huge quantity of sugar in bond that they had been drawing upon as the needs required.

The nine clerks in Cashier Symonds' office were taxed by the unexpected rush.

Symonds predicted the rush would continue Monday with the probability of a record-breaking day, considering that today's large receipts were gathered in during less than three hours before the noon closing.

FAST WORK ON ALLEN PAPERS

All records for speed in filing nomination papers for state office were broken today when a nominating petition in behalf of Gov. Frank G. Allen was filed in the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, 24 hours after the blank petition was delivered to Walter F. Schuster, member of the Governor's Council.

Schuster received the petition at 10 a. m. yesterday, signed it, secured 77 other signatures, had the copy certified by the board of registrars of Douglas, where he resides, and brought the paper to Boston, handing it over personally to the Governor before 10 o'clock today.

Four Killed When Train Wrecks Auto

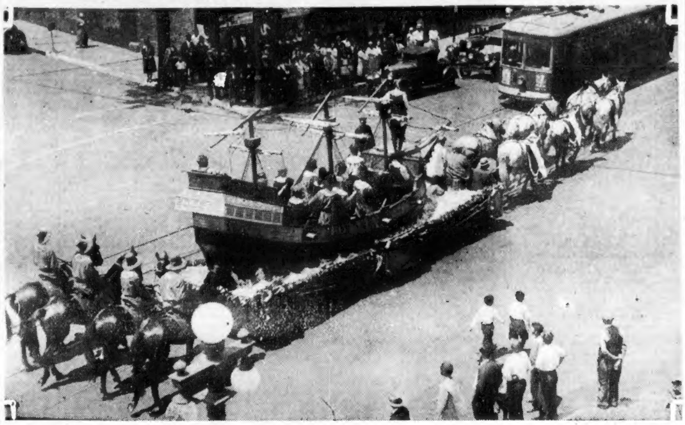
Gary, Ind., June 14 (US)—Four steel workers were killed and two others were injured yesterday when a New York Central Railroad passenger train wrecked their automobile at Pine.

The dead are Francisco Castro, John Gomez, Pedro Castellano and Mike Hernandez.

Stork Again Visits Eleanor Boardman

Los Angeles, June 14 (AP)—An eight-pound girl was born yesterday to Eleanor Boardman, film actress, wife of King Vidor, motion picture director. They have one other child, a girl of three.

Salem to State House Moves the 'Charter Cavalcade'



THE TRIP STARTED Thursday from Salem. It will end tonight at the State House. Picture shows float with representation of the "Arbella" in the tercentenary "Charter Cavalcade" passing through Wakefield on its journey to Boston. The Cavalcade will pass through Somerville today, entering the city at Winter Hill at 11 a. m. and leaving at 1:15 p. m. for Cambridge. The passage of the cavalcade through Somerville marks the opening exercise of the city's tercentenary celebration.

CHAIR FOR WIFE AND MARINE

Tom's River, N. J., June 14 (AP)—Lester Underdown and Mrs. Hattie Evans were convicted today of the murder of Robert Evans, the woman's husband. They were sentenced to die in the electric chair. The jury made no recommendation for mercy.

Mrs. Evans and Underdown, a United States Marine attached to the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, were indicted with two other Marines, Claude Carmichael and Madison Chappel, for killing Evans and his friend, Albert Duffy.

The state charged Mrs. Evans, who is 41, formulated the plan and that Underdown, with whom she admitted intimacy, carried it out. The two men were killed in Evans' cottage near the air station on May 16, two days after Evans was discharged from the navy.

10,000 in Somerville's Tercentenary Parade

Somerville celebrated the tercentenary today with its police chief, Thomas Damery, observing the ceremonies from an airplane that circled the spot where the first flag of the United American colonies was raised in defiance of the British.

The city, renowned in history as the home of John Winthrop, first Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, opened its program when the historic "Charter Cavalcade" climbed Winter Hill on its march to Boston.

The cavalcade paraded through the city and was reviewed at City Hall after it had participated in dedication ceremonies of a tablet at Ten Hills Farm, home of Governor Winthrop.

10,000 IN PARADE

A huge civic and military parade of five divisions started from Powder House Park at 2:30 with 10,000 marchers in line. The 101st Aero Squadron flew over the city during the parade.

Lawrence F. Nugent, past commander of Somerville Post, American Legion was chief marshal. He was assisted by Joseph D. Flladora, chief of staff and Capt. Adna D. Long, adjutant.

At 5 p. m. a historial pageant, "Municipal Freedom Gives National Strength" was presented at Dilboy Field by pupils and teachers of Somerville schools.

DEPICT HISTORY

The pageant will present in 10 episodes the outstanding historical incidents of Somerville from the coming of the first white man, Myles Standish, in 1621, to the raising of the first flag on Prospect Hill.

At 7 p. m., a flag-raising service will be held at Prospect Hill. Rep. Joseph J. Borgatti will deliver a short talk on the history of the flag. This will be followed by an address by Warren L. Bishop, assistant district attorney of Middlesex County.

Admiral Says Farewell

ANDREWS ON 'Y' INSPECTION

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, who on Monday retires from active service and relinquishes his post as commandant of the First Naval District, paid a final visit of inspection to the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown today.

The admiral, who for many years has been one of the warmest friends of the institution, was accompanied on his inspection trip by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton will succeed Andrews at ceremonies in the Navy Yard at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Commdr. P. K. Robottom, aide to Admiral Andrews, will leave at the same time to assume command of Submarine Division 4, with base at New London.

Lieut.-Comdr. R. O. Davis, aide to Admiral Nulton while he was head of the battle fleet, will perform the same duties here.

Southern Cross May Delay Flight Again

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 14 (AP—After reading the British air ministry's noon weather bulletin indicating strong winds with a considerable area of low clouds and rain over the Atlantic, the crew of the Southern Cross today indicated it was unlikely they would take off tomorrow morning.

Chief Only Fireman at U. S. Mint Fire

Philadelphia, June 14—The chief of the Philadelphia fire department was the only fireman admitted to the United States mint early today when an alarm was turned in because of a fire in Uncle Sam's money factory. The fire was among some rubbish and hand extinguishers' put out the blaze.

TRAFFIC SPLITS CAVALCADE

Twentieth century traffic in Cambridge today raised havoc with the "Charter Cavalcade," on its way from Salem to Boston, where it is scheduled to be reviewed by Governor Allen on the steps of the State House late thi safternoon.

The cavalcade, symbolizing the arrival of the charter of self-government in Massachusetts 300 years ago, had been making good time until it left Medford. Too good, in fact, for it passed Somerville City Hall an hour ahead of schedule, and as a result, Mayor John J. Murphy was not in the reviewing stand, and James W. Kenney, chairman of the tercentenary committeee, had to extend the official welcome.

In Cambridge the procession encountered heavy traffic. The crier, garbed in Puritan costume, rang his bell in vain as lines of automobiles swept across the path.

The mounted band was cut off from the main body and valuable time was lost in restoring order.

Mayor Richard Russell reviewed the Cavalcade at Cambridge City Hall after which it proceeded to the State House and thence to the Charles st. Mall of the Common.

There it will combine with the Flag Day ceremonies of the Boston Lodge of Elks at Parkman bandstand. It is due by the State House at 4:45 p. m.

At 7 o'clock the Cavalcade will proceed through the streets of the Back Bay.

FLIER, 2 GIRLS IN CRASH

A few hours after he dropped a wreath from the sky near the grave of Mrs. James M. Curley at the funeral services in Old Calvary Cemetery, Thomas C. Croce, well known barnstorming pilot of the East Boston airport, narrowly escaped death when his machine cracked up in making a landing at the Beverly airport.

Croce, long a friend of the Curley family, paid his tribute to Mrs. Curley as a personal one. The wreath dropped in front of the Sacred Heart chapel, after which Croce circled the cemetery several times and returned to the East Boston airport.

Several hours later he took two passengers, Edith Goldberg of Massachusetts ave., Boston, and Elsie Osher of New York, on a trip to Hamilton and return. On the return trip the ill-fated landing was made at the Beverly airport.

The landing gear of the plane was wrecked and both passengers suffered from shock but were otherwise uninjured. Croce, who lives on Bennington st., East Boston, was not injured.

N. E. COUNCIL IS TOLD NEED OF BANK REFORM

Federal Reserve Head Would Give the National Banks Branch Privileges

Poland Spring, Me., June 14 (INS)—"Disgraceful" was the characterization of the present national situation with relation to bank failures by Edmund Platt, vice-governor of the Federal Reserve Board, before the 19th quarterly meeting of the New England Council today. He suggested branch banking privileges for national banks as a method of remedying conditions.

"I suggest that national banks be given the same privileges with relation to branches that state banks have," he said. "I suggest that in all states the national banks should be permitted to establish branches through consolidations in trade areas, which might well start with the limits of the present Maine law, with discretion to the comptroller of currency for extension where necessary in order to secure the diversification of loans essential to safety."

5642 CLOSED.

The Maine law permits branches in the county of the parent bank and adjoining county.

"No less than 5642 banks were closed in the years 1921 to 1929, inclusive," said Platt. "There were 349 failures during the first four months of this year, of which 92 occurred in the month of April."

Declaring that the problem is not acute in the northeastern states, including New England, the speaker indicated that in areas of diversified economic activity, where bank loans may be similarly diversified, banks are in a much stronger position than in strictly agricultural areas where proper diversification is less easily achieved.

REGIONAL UNITY.

Regional unity and co-operation for economic growth, the objective in New England of the New England Council, is being achieved in the Northwest by the association of banks in "group banking" systems, Gardner B. Perry, vice-president of the Northwest Bank Corporation declared.

"We have banded together over 100 banks with $500,000,000 resources in each of two groups, covering our territory from a geographical, political, industrial and, above all, agricultural standpoint," he said.

He added that a local crop failure, formerly a big disaster to some, now becomes a small sore spot to the body at large in the Northwest.

Wins State Test for Edison Award

Olympia, Wash., June 14 (AP)—Garth Putnam, 17-year-old Ellensburgh high school boy, will be Washington's representative in the national competition for the 1930 Thomas A. Edison scholarship at East Orange, N. J., July 29.

Young Putnam, in winning the State elimination tests, achieved a rating in science which Dr. N. D. Schowalter, State superintendent, said surpassed that of Wilber B. Huston, Seattle, Wash., youth who won the 1929 national Edison contest.

His bride was graduated last year from the Leland T. Powers School.

Women Will Study City Expenses

Voters League Will Report to Mayor Curley on Cost of Welfare Office

By NANCY BREWSTER

At the request of Mayor Curley, the Boston League of Women Voters will study the question of the rising cost in the public welfare department and the increased demand for aid due to unemployment, reporting to him their methods for effective relief.

The suggestion resulted from a conference with the mayor, when a committee composed of Mrs. Thomas F. McMahon, Mrs. David A. Lourie, Miss Dorothy Worrell and Mrs. Robert L. DeNormandie, visited the executive for information.

Mrs. DeNormandie has been invited to join a group, composed of "those interested in the proper administration of charity from a municipal viewpoint," with regular meetings at City Hall. This she will do, reporting to the league and enlisting its aid.

The Boston league will sponsor in the fall an intensive series of luncheon meetings at which discussion will center around the work of the departments of the city. The committee is chairmanned by Mrs. McMahon with Miss Worrell as secretary.

Public Utilities to Be Discussed at Big Durham Conference

Under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, the regional conference on the regulation of public utilities will take place at the University of New Hampshire at Durham, Wednesday, June 25. It is to be the first day of a two-day citizenship school sponsored by the New Hampshire League.

Mrs. Harris Baldwin, national chairman of living costs, will be present and will conduct a questionnaire in the morning when each state in the region will present a survey of its public utilities regulations. Speakers will present different points of view in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham, who are conducting an experimental farm in New Hampshire, where they are testing the uses of electricity, will speak for the consumer.

Miss Ellen F. Gove Elected President of Whittier Club

MISS ELLEN F. GOVE will lead the Elizabeth H. Whittier Club of Amesbury next year, so the recent elections show. More than 250 women are members of this club, whose chief interests are Americanization, art, education, legislation, literature and music.

To serve with Miss Gove, this state was picked: Vice-presidents, Mrs. William Hetherman, Mrs. Henry R. McCrone, Mrs. Nathaniel Currier and Mrs. Harold P. Gale; recording secretary, Mrs. Ralph Barr; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James Malone; treasurer, Mrs. Warren Sanborn; auditor, Mrs. George Harvey; Federation secretary, Mrs. John Gibbons; directors, Mrs. Ralph Spofford, Mrs. Robert Hannigan, Mrs. Charles Falconer, Mrs. George H. Clark, Mrs. J. J. Reardon, Mrs. Lizzie F. Morrill, Mrs. Guy Nickerson and Miss Ursula Pendexter.

Clubwomen Donate $3000 Toward Forest Gift to Bay State

Nearly $3000 has been pledged and paid toward the Massachusetts State Federation Memorial Forest, proposed by Mrs. Daniel M. Goodridge, including the $1800 from the 14th and 15th district forest fund.

Since the annual report of Mrs. Goodridge at the State Federation meeting in Swampscott, Mrs. Frederick S. Davis, State treasurer, has received these gifts which are announced today: Andover Tuesday Club, $5; Carolyn J. Peck, $5; Westboro Woman's Club, $25; Kalmia, North Attleboro, $15; Nahant Woman's Club, $10, and Canton Community Club, $5.

As you know, the State forest is to be the gift of Bay State clubwomen to the tercentenary of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Prescott Named Aide to President of State Federation

Mrs. Frederick M. Prescott, formerly chairman of meetings, and contemporary president of the Old and New Club of Malden, when Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, State Federation head, was president of the Belmont Woman's Club, has been chosen as president's page to Mrs. Schrader.

This is an important post to fill since its entails endless finesses and duties, tact and diplomacy, and above all—charm. This Mrs. Prescott indeed has.

Mrs. 'Azel A. Packard Sails Soon to Make Long Tour of Europe

When Mrs. Azel A. Packard, retired state president of the Federation, returns from Denver and the Biennial where her position as Massachusetts director in the General Federation was confirmed, she will make plans for an extensive tour of Europe. Not alone in the interest of a much needed vacation, but to satisfy a desire to tour all the European countries.

She is to start at the end of June, remaining abroad until the middle of September after which she comes home to enlist the financial suppport of Bay State clubwomen towards realizing the General Federation Foundation Fund.

Breeze Tempers Heat in Week-end Weather

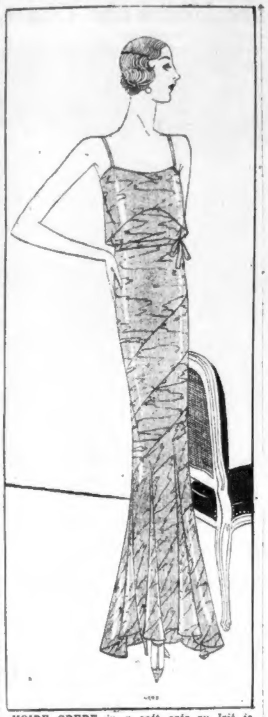
While the official temperature in Boston reached 83 degrees at noon today and continued at that figure at 1 o'clock, a southwest breeze and a humidity near normal made the weather comfortable.

"Continued fair with little or no change in temperature and with south and southwest winds" was the official weather forecast for Sunday in Boston and vicinity.

A humidity of 75 degrees, only four above normal, was reported by the weather bureau today.

The temperature at noon was just 10 degrees warmer than at the same hour yesterday.

Moire Is Marked for Successful Season



MOIRE CREPE in a soft cafe au lait is used with much effect in the evening gown offering by Molyneux. Spiral thought in skirt is unique. (Sketched in Paris.)

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 14.

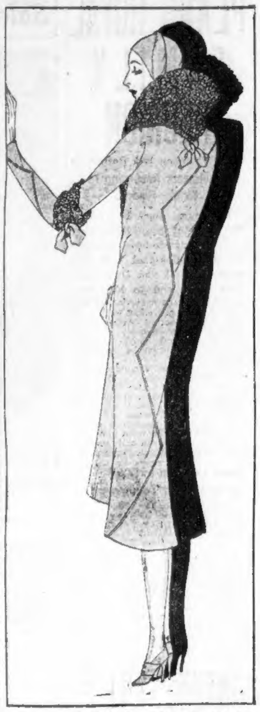
SOME MATERIALS seem marked for success and in that category, we must of course, include moire. We do not know the extent of the acclaim accorded in moire weaves on your side, but over here they have been quite successful and nearly every collection has given moire representation.

It has, however, been better liked for evening than for day wear, its effect of richness making it an ideal after-dark fabric. The majority of moire frocks are generally of distinctive design and clever detail, with an utter absence of ornamentation, the material being gingerly and carefully handled by the designers here, otherwise the effect is apt to be rather "oldish" and heavy, both most undesirable attributes. Simple lines, a light weave and absence of trimming are the three salient points to remember if you are planning an evening frock of moire.

To show the utter simplicity and extreme smartness of a moire gown, we have chosen a Molyneux model in this medium. Capt. Molyneux has used moire crepe in a soft cafe au lait with much effect for this evening frock. The bodice is partially concealed beneath a bolero which dips up in front and down behind. Spiral piecings on the skirt overtop a flaring flounce with circular godets spaced at regular intervals all around and reaching to the floor. A narrow ribbon belt, placed at a high waistline, ties at one side.

Our only excuse for showing you a picture of a fur-trimmed coat these torrid days is to be found in our desire to acquaint the readers of this page with the earliest possible ideas, developments and trends in matters sartorial. The Chantal coat, therefore, shown here is an early autumn model and is a clear and clever preview of next season's coat fashions. It is of dove-gray velours de laine, the soft fabric set off by the lavish use of natural gray astrakan.

Amusing little bow-knots of the fabric are poised at the back of the collar and at each elbow. A zig-zag "empiecement" trims the back of the straight coat and is repeated on the equally straight sleeves.



LOOKING AHEAD for fall this Chantal coat is offered for consideration. It is of dove gray velours de laine, set off with gray astrakan. (Sketched in Paris.)

Alicia Behr Becomes Bride of H. Keasbey Bramhall

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, June 14—Season in and out, the swagger Morristown set gathers in that de luxe edifice, St. Peter's, at the New Jersey center of culture and fashion and pays homage to Morristown brides.

Yesterday afternoon it was Alicia ony, who claimed the attention of Howell Behr, daughter of the Frederick H. Behrs, pillars of the col- the wedding fans.

For Alicia, who cared not a snap of her highly polished digits about the jinx popularly supposed to hang over nuptial events solemnized on Friday, the 13th, became the bride of H. Keasbey Bramhall. And for the ceremony St. Peter's was en fete.

The elect of New York and Philadelphia will be interested in the news, cabled from Paris last evening, telling of the betrothal of Charlotte Boettger and Joseph Bondaraut Ryan.

Charlotte is a daughter of the Theodore Boettgers of Hackensack, N. J., and Quogue, and the formal news of her engagement was made known at a luncheon given by the American Ambassador to France, Walter E. Edge.

No date is mentioned for the wedding.

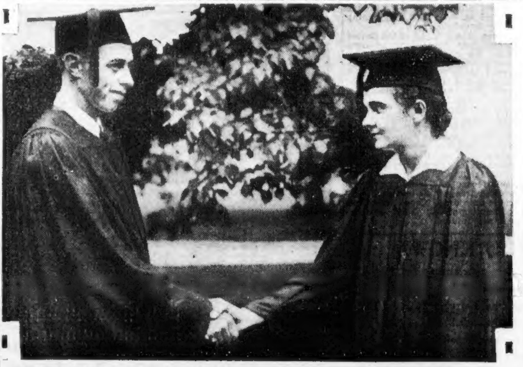
From La Jolla, Cal., comes a note penned by Mrs. Owen Atkinson, the former Kathleen Hayward, requesting me to announce the arrival of a son and heir, who is to be named Hayward Owen Atkinson.

Wales Grieves With Widow of Segrave

London, June 14 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, who was much interested in the exploits of Maj. Sir Henry O. Segrave, who was killed yesterday in a speed boat accident, today sent a message of sympathy to Lady Segrave. It read:

"Please accept my deepest sympathy in yours and the country's great loss."

Meet Under Tree Before Tufts Oration



HONORS WENT to Charles E. Boardman of Tufts and Miss G. Margaret Rourke of Jackson College for delivering tree oration during class day exercises at Tufts yesterday afternoon. It was after a big battle that students elected their orators. Miss Rourke was wishing Boardman luck. Both addresses were well delivered. (Staff photo.)

Dry League Founders to Mark Anniversary

Oberlin, O., June 14—The four surviving founders of the Anti-Saloon League planned a reunion here today in belated celebration of the 37th birthday of the organization.

The living organizers of the league are Drs. J. T. Henderson and A. G. Cummings of Oberlin, Dr. Howard A. Russell of the Armour Institute, Chicago, and the Rev. Henry M. Tenney of La Grange, Ill.

Island Communion First Since 1876 for Children

The first communion attended by children on Deer Island since 1876 will be celebrated tomorrow morning by Rev. Edward U. Conroy, the chaplain of the House of Correction, in the institution chapel.

The children to take their first communion are Elizabeth, eight, and Pauline, seven, daughters of Head Master George F. A. Mulcahey, and Walter Moilett, seven, son of William Moilett, one of the institution officers.

The communion will be served at the regular 8:15 mass and will be attended by inmates of the institution. Dorothy Mulcahey, oldest daughter of the master, will sing a solo. The last communion taken by children was when a boys' reformatory was located on the island.

What Do You Know About That?

DYNAMITING 34 YEARS—HAS HAD BUT ONE SLIGHT ACCIDENT

JOHN WALSH, BOSTON CITY DYNAMITER

Handling dynamite for the past 34 years with his only mishap the breaking of a light of glass. This is the record of John Walsh, city dynamiter.

Even with his years of experience and his good fortune he will tell you he still knows little about the high explosive.

"I have seen dynamite handled as carelessly as could be at times without causing any damage to property or injury to persons. On the other hand, I have known of cases where the mere jar from the dropping of a heavy bar near a bag of the explosive has been enough to detone it.

USES GREAT CARE

"No living persons today can tell you the dangers of handling "soap," as it is termed in the profession or occupation as you might call it. As well acquainted as I am with the handling of dynamite, I always use every precaution known, and hope I shall continue along this line."

There is little work for the dynamiter today, Walsh explains, as most of the sewer jobs and the like are completed. The majority of his work, he declared, had been done when sewer and gas mains were being prepared.

There are few living today who have followed the occupation Walsh has followed since he was a youth, who can boast of such a clean record.

FEW IN TRADE

Many times he has blasted tons of rock from its foundation within close proximity to buildings without the slightest damage to the nearby property. To do this, Walsh asserts, it takes a lot of preparation.

"I can set a charge of dynamite within a dozen feet of a building without even jarring the foundation and at the same time accomplish the blasting with efficiency," he said.

TORNADOES KILL FIVE IN WEST

Eau Claire, Wis., June 14 (INS)—Five persons dead, scores injured and property damage in excess of a half-million dollars were the toll today of a series of tornadoes which struck western Wisconsin and southern Minnesota last night.

Four persons were killed and 12 injured when a twister hit Menomonie, Wis., 24 miles west of here, last night. The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolbert, a woman identified as a Mrs. Kaiser and an unidentified man.

Several buildings were blown down here. The Della Lumber Company sawmill was demolished and the roof of the Beauregard Hotel was hurled against the Security State Bank. Property damage was estimated at $400,000.

In southern Wisconsin a series of tornadoes did a similar property damage.

New Philco Radio Is Shown Dealers

New England Philco dealers had their initial view of the 1930-31 line of Philco radio receivers, first displayed at the Atlantic City exposition recently, at a get-together banquet at the Chamber of Commerce dining room last night. The new receiver exhibited embodies a complete range of radio reception in a single receiver.

Sayre M. Ramsdell, Harry Brown, Larry Gubb, James R. Kennally, Ralph Schenader, Clarence McClasky and S. W. Phelps, officials of the Philco Company, attended the dinner given by the May Distributors, Inc., and the Milhender Electric Supply Company, New England distributors for Philco Radio products.

'WORD HUNT' IS LATEST SPORT

The Boston Evening American Ripley "WORD HUNT" is sweeping the city!

It's more fun than a circus! Thousands are playing in this merry game which is to find in the daily and Sunday classified ads hidden descriptions of the Ripley "Believe It Or Not" pictures which appear in the Boston American every day.

Just think, $2500 in cash, 99 prizes in all, will be given winners in this fascinating, instructive and profitable game.

This is a pastime for everyone! Only employes of the Boston Amrican, Boston Sunday Advertiser and their immediate families are barred from participating.

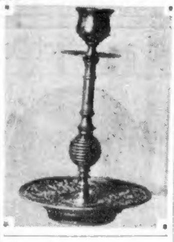
The "WORD HUNT" is a game which appeals to young, middle-aged, elderly and aged; it is a recreation for the multitude.

Here's good news for persons who may have missed some of the Ripley "WORD HUNT" picture sets. Tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser will contain reprints of all the pictures published during this week, besides picture set No. 6.

You'll also enjoy the daily Ripley "School Days" broadcast built around these pictures. Listen in at 11 a. m. and 6 p. m. tonight.

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 121



IF YOU COULD SEE this brass candlestick, you'd just have to say: "It's beautiful." It's mighty odd, too, and was for many years the property of the line of Earls of Northumberland, but following the Revolution, the candlestick came into America. It is the property of Mrs. Jean E Rich, 60 Temple st., Boston. Mrs. Temple's father passed it along to her. He was a descendant from an Earl of Northumberland.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

Cripple Burns to Death in Factory

Baltimore, June 14 (AP)—Charles Swift, one of three brothers composing the firm of M. J. Swift & Co., bag manufacturers, was burned to death in a fire which wrecked the interior of the plant in East Baltimore today. Swift, a cripple, was trapped on the third floor. Flames and smoke drove back police and firemen who made repeated attempts to rescue him.

RAID 'WETTEST BLOCK IN U. S.'

New York, June 14 (AP)—A group of prohibition agents from Washington raided five restaurants in West 45th st. shortly before midnight and seized so much liquor that one of the agents remarked, "It must be the wettest block in the United States."

The raids on the five places, between 8th and 9th aves., in the midtown theatrical district, were made simultaneously. The agents, armed with crowbars and sledge hammers, paired off, and at a signal knocked at the doors and told the doormen to open or the doors would be knocked down. No force was needed.

Sixteen persons, including proprietors, managers, waiters and cooks, were arrested. Hundreds of patrons were ordered to leave. Moving vans were used to cart the seized liquor to a warehouse.

COLLEEN TO STAR IN BIG FOX FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, JUNE 14—You'd expect a man by the name of Winfield Sheehan to appreciate an artist by the name of Maureen O'Sullivan. The Irish stick together just like the Jews, the Germans and all other nationalities.

Louella Parsons

But if Maureen O'Sullivan hadn't had the personality, the charm and the ability, Winfield Sheehan, in spite of her nationality, wouldn't have given her a second look. But, lucky for Maureen, she can put over an act with the best of the colleens. Looking over the list of prospects for "Just Imagine," the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson production, Winnie decided to give Maureen her big chance. She isn't yet 18, she is pretty as a picture and has a voice to which Tom Moore might have written a poem.

John Garrick, just as English as Maureen is Irish, has the lead, with El Brendel, Marjorie White and Frank Albertson bringing up in the rest of the cast. David Butler directs and Monday is the starting date. So keep your eye on the Irish.

YOUNG DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS is a surprising youth. He is versatile to the nth degree, being not only a capable actor but a writer as well. His recent articles, published in a current magazine, featuring Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and four other celebrities, show unmistakable talent. Doug, Sr., returning from Europe, read his son's impressions of himself. In ten brief words he wired: "Your article excellent. Deny, however, I am losing my hair." Universal has been considering Doug, Jr., for the leading role in "The Command to Love."

The dinner was served in the new Blum home, gay with Chinese lanterns. Achmed Abdullah accompanied by Lowell Sherman and Helene Costello among the guests. Rube Goldberg imbibing some California atmosphere, enjoying the outdoor party of the festivities. Robert Chisholm making his Hollywood debut as a singer. Merton Downey assisting young Douglas Fairbanks in the blackouts. Bessie Love in a pale blue evening dress, looking a little wan from her recent illness. Ona Munson, one of the prettiest girls present. Phyllis Haver, guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Embassy. Laura La Plante without her spectacles, among those present. That's all today.

RACKS BRAIN FOR WORDS

The vogue of mental games has taken hold of Hollywood. They are even being indulged in on the great "silent" stages where the picture players quietly await their turn before the camera and microphone.

Anita Page, who is to be seen at Loew's Orpheum next week as Marie Dressler's daughter in "Caught Short," says she finds that some interesting puzzle keeps her more alert for her screen work than when she concentrates on memorizing her lines while waiting for her cue. One of the games she has tried with success, she says, consists of coining words by filling in blank lines.

Dancing Aboard Ship Popular Feature

On with the dance! is the spirit aboard the good ship Mayflower, the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company's palatial dine-and-dance steamer. The moonlight sails out over the waters of Boston Harbor and Massachusetts Bay are proving the big hit.

The musicians aboard are the "Steamer Mayflower Orchestra," a famous band.

The Mayflower sails from Rowe's Wharf at 8:30 p. m. each weekday night, returns at 11, but the dancing continues until midnight.

THE VILLAIN TURNS OUT THE HERO

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Up to now it has been William Powell's experience that he has finished each picture miles ahead of anyone else in the cast. One got thinking of him as a run-away gentleman who sped along at such swift histrionic pace that none others nearby could catch up with him. In "Shadow of the Law," now at the Washington St. Olympia and the Uptown, he finds things a bit different. He is still the sterling actor of, say, "Street of Chance" calibre; but now he has a close runner-up. This individual is Paul Hurst, who really shines. Were Mr. Powell not so very, very fine, Mr. Hurst might easily have "stolen" the photodrama.

"Shadow of the Law" is a splendid prison story, grippingly presented to us by Paramount. Bostonians will be interested in the authorship; it is from the pen of John A. Moroso, a newspaperman of a former day still remembered hereabouts for his excellence. Mr. Powell is the hero; Mr. Hurst is his pal, a roughneck. The former has been convicted of murder. Wrongfully, but a woman, the only person who could prove his innocence, has disappeared. The hero, in his cell, yearns for opportunity to find this woman. Finally, he escapes.

Mr. Powell in time re-establishes himself and becomes the manager of a mill. Hurst shows up, and is told to find Natalie Moorhead, who holds the key to the hero's fate. Then Powell falls in love with Marion Shilling, daughter of the owner of the mill. Thrilling sequences now come; for one, Powell is faced by a detective who has tracked him down. It is intensely stirring, and the ending meets all fan demands.

Among the best scenes are those coming just before the escape. Here Powell is superb in the drama, and Hurst in the comedy. Miss Moorhead is convincing; two good ones in minor roles are Jack Durkin and Fredric Burt.

"Shadow of the Law" can be recommended as classy entertainment.

"Outward Bound"

Warner has added Alec Francis to the cast of "Outward Bound."

FAMILY GOES IN FOR ART

Out of a family which distinguished itself in the arts, Kenneth MacKenna, to be seen in support of Lenore Ulric in "South Sea Rose," at the Keith-Albee, was the only one to choose the drama. MacKenna's mother was a noted journalist, his father a celebrated portrait painter, and a brother a widely known scenic artist. Charlotte Cushman, great stage actress of other days, is a great-aunt, and the novelist, Stephen MacKenna, a cousin. Kenneth launched his career in a production with Grace George, who was his sponsor. Numbered among his subsequent plays are "At 9:45," "Insect Comedy," "You and I," "Forever After," "What Every Woman Knows," and "The Big Pond," the last named having been his own production, which lasted two season.

Marshall Neilan has been engaged by the Christies to direct "Sweethearts on Parade," in which Alice White and Lloyd Hughes will have the chief roles.

REVERE IS TO CELEBRATE

The Battle of Bunker Hill in fireworks, an elaborate display of aerial bombs, sky-rockets and other pyrotechnics, will usher in the holiday next week at Revere Beach, the Playground of New England.

An all-night celebration has been arranged by the amusement division of the Revere Chamber of Commerce, with the fireworks scheduled to be set off shortly before midnight, Monday.

The boulevard has been gaily decorated for the occasion and numerous features have been planned. There will be midnight dances at the State Ballroom, Crescent Gardens and Spanish Gables, and the numerous shows, rides and other amusements for which Revere Beach is noted will be in full swing.

"Sea God"

"The Sea God," from a John Russell story adapted by George Abbott, is being filmed on location in the Pacific. The completed film will contain many underwater scenes. A large group of South Sea Islanders will appear in the picture.

REAL "PEP" IS NEEDED FOR CHEF'S JOB

There is a possibility matters will eventually reach a point in the theater where a property man, before he can receive a union card, will be compelled to produce a certificate proving he has been graduated from some good domestic science course and can cook, make beds and do plain and fancy sewing. Should such a day arrive, David Parmenter, master of properties for the Martin Flavin comedy, "Broken Dishes," at the Wilbur, will have nothing to fear. Parmenter, incidentally, is a Bostonian and is now commuting daily to Revere Beach.

The play starts out with a real meal, provided in its entirety by the property man. Mr. Parmenter may be found every evening prior to the performance in front of an electric stove backstage watching the kettle boil. Although he cooks little, he has to devote considerable time to arranging the dinner.

He must superintend the washing of the dishes after each performance, inasmuch as actors are finicky and will not tolerate dirty china; he must lay the tablecloth and set the table in the most approved housewifely fashion; he must see to it that tablecloth and napkins are reasonably clean, and must therefore keep on terms of intimacy with the driver of a laundry wagon who drops in at the stage door once or twice a week.

HANSOM CAB ADDS 'KICK' TO GAME

FOOTBALL GAMES of a generation ago were rather different from those now staged in big college stadiums, a fact which caused labor for the research department in preparing for Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan picture, "The Florodora Girl," which is to be shown next week at Loew's State.

"THE FLORODORA GIRL," a romance of "the gay 90's," shows life as it was lived by the smart set of that time. One of the exciting diversions was to watch the football games on old South Field at Columbia University. There was no grandstand around the field then and the spectators ranged themselves along the sidelines in any way they pleased, much as they do now at an informal race meet. Their carriages were lined up a few feet back of the side-lines, and if anyone wanted a better vantage-point from which to see the game, he could clamber upon the roof of a coach or to the high driver's seat of a hansom cab.

Marion Davies

THE PLAYERS themselves wore gabardine jackets over their jerseys in order that a tackler's hands might slip off. Huge nose guards of hard rubber, with an attachment to be held in the mouth, decorated the faces of most of the players at that time. The game itself was a great deal slower than it is today.

THE SPECTATORS' sports clothing would seem ludicrous to the football devotee of today. The undergraduates were very "rah-rah" in their manner of dress. Thick, worsted sweaters with turtle-neck collars were considered the very height of fashion. Bulldog shoes and bulldog pipes were fitted to the feet and faces of the undergraduates. Other spectators came in equally laughable garments. Tightly buttoned coats and high-crowned, narrow-brimmed derby hats were worn by the men, and plumes, bustles, feather boas and hand muffs adorned the women.

Screen "Ma" Passes Her 76th Milestone

Laura La Varnie, for the past 19 years, has been known as "Ma." She was 57 years old when she made her screen debut, and she is still doing character work.

"Ma" celebrated her 76th birthday recently when she was working at Paramount's Hollywood studios on Nancy Carroll's starring picture, "The Devil's Holiday," at the Scollay, next week.

POET MAY BE QUOTED ON COWARDS

The bravest man often is the coward, according to Walter Browne Rogers, who played one of the schoolboy soldiers in "All Quiet on the Western Front," at the Majestic.

"Behm, the soldier that was my role, was the one who held back from enlistment, who had to force himself to go, who fell groveling with fear at the first shell-burst and who was the first to die," Rogers said.

"Behm might have been called a coward by the derisive," Rogers continued. "He was afraid, terribly afraid, yet he went. The others were not afraid. They wanted to go. It was an adventure. They saw nothing in it but glory when they marched away from school. Behm was the bravest because he was afraid, because his fear never left him, but yet he did not falter."

While he was attending Carnegie Tech several years ago, Rogers was chosen in a contest as one of ten college boys best suited for motion picture honors. He appeared on the stage in Pittsburgh and Denver after his first venture in pictures proved unsuccessful.

BAND IS KEPT THIRD WEEK

Emory Daugherty has been such a success at the new Totem Pole Ballroom, Norumbega Park, that the resort will retain "Mr. Pep" and his musicians for another week. He begins his third week of "melodies in the in the manner" Monday night.

The park's miniature golf links, described as "18 holes of golf through a veritable fairyland," is now open. Eben Baker, graduate engineer, designed the course.

A great attendance is expected Monday night, the eve of Bunker Hill Day. Norumbega will be open one hour later than usual. Dancing at the ballroom holds forth until 1 a. m.

BOOSTER FOR HOME TOWN IS ACTOR

Will Rogers never misses a chance to publicize his home town, Claremore, Okla. In "So This Is London," his Fox Movietone production, which is now playing at the New B. F. Keith's. There is a scene a boardship with Will on deck. At every turn he seems to encounter an irrepressible kid, played by the little Martha Lee Sparks of "Happy Days" fame.

Will Rogers

The kid hurls one question after another at him until, finally, Will stops her and says:

"Hey! Wait a minute. You ask a lot of questions. Just what part of England are you from?"

And the little girl answers:

"Claremore, Oklahoma!"

You don't have to guess who put that line in and it stays, too.

"So This Is London," adopted from the stage play by Owen Davis, Sr., who wrote the dialog.

THE bold, bad Nineties are here again. Dear, dear, what wicked people. (Laughter!) They took joy rides at 20 miles an hour in their new gasoline buggies. They wore bustles — and everything. Here's a talking picture of those gay old days, with Marion Davies playing one of the famous Florodora Sextette. She has never been funnier! And what with songs and gayety and the pretty Florodora girls, you're going to have the time of your life!

N. E.-WESTERN AIR LINE WILL START MONDAY

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Branching out in their operations, the New England and Western Air Transportation Co. announces an entirely new schedule for their lines between Boston, Springfield, Albany and New York, effective next Monday.

Two trips per day from Boston to New York, a like number to Albany from the Hub, and three trips daily to Springfield is the lien-up decided by officials of the line after a month's operation.

When New England began flying between the four cities on the first of May, they started without any ballyhoo whatsoever, and with hardly any idea as to how the service was going to develop. The only idea the officials had in mind was to find out if the traveling public of all four points would accept fast, safe and economic air transportation.

The line caught with public fancy from the start, and it had been in operation scarcely more than two weeks before both ships were filled on every trip. Prices were ranged low enough to be an inducement, if not a money-making proposition, and Pilots Jacob and Ruce kept plugging away, building up a reputation.

A new Wasp engined tri-motored Ford cabin monoplane was received from the factory, and after being thoroughly tested in the New England air tour was turned over to New England and Western.

The company's three planes, another Wasp job and a 300 horsepower Wright Whirlwind tri-motor, were then allocated on each of the three runs, with Springfield as the home base.

After three weeks' planning, C. E. Corson, president, and H. E. Jacob, chief pilot and vice-president, decided on the two trips per day on each leg, with three from Boston to Springfield, and a like number between Springfield and New York.

The complete schedule, starting June 16, is as follows (all on daylight saving time and seven-day-a-week schedule):

Bring On the Shamrock! We'll Race Her

CUP DEFENDERS? What's the matter with these trim little yachts? They can show the heels to anything afloat in their class, be it sailed by Sir Thomas Lipton or some of his descendants. Photo shows the start of the trials in Boston's own big annual yacht races on Frog Pond.

HERBERT HOWARD JAMES METANIAS

MODEL YACHTS IN FAST RACES

Model yacht racing enthusiasts had their inning at the Frog Pond on Boston Common today before a large crowd of youthful yachting fans preliminary races, a tuning up for the Model Yacht Regatta to be held on the Charles river, June 29, were held.

The youths raced model yachts in four classes, the 56-inch, 24-inch, 18-inch and the small "Fair Wind" type with their paper sails.

Hubert Howard captured honors in the 36-inch class with the vanity. Honors in the 24-inch class were captured by James Metanias. Eighteen-inch class honors went to Arakel Mouredian, while honors in the fair wind class were won by James Metanias.

Entries for the regatta on the Charles river can be made with F. L. Pigeon, 131 Coleridge st., East Boston.

CHICAGO POLICE PROBE LOOMS

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—The civic furore touched off by the slaying of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, a Tribune reporter, veered strongly today against the city administration.

While newspapers renewed their front page editorial attacks on what they termed "an alliance between crime and politics," strength was gained in the City Council by those seeking an investigation of the police department.

Alderman Arthur Albert, who pressed Mayor William Hale Thompson to remove Police Commissioner William Russell and Chief of Detectives John Stege "for 60 days at least," said six councilmen pledged their support last night for a full investigation of the department.

The Daily News, reporting an investigation made by its staff, "conservatively estimated" that $5,785,000 was paid weekly into gangland's coffers through operation of speakeasies, gambling houses and handbooks, disorderly houses and racketeering.

Brewster Sees Tariff Sop to G. O. P. Pets

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Portland, Me., June 14—With a parting shot at the Grundy billion-dollar tariff bill, former Governor Ralph O. Brewster brought his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States senator to a close and today rested on his oars for the battle of ballots Monday.

Brewster declared the new tariff legislation, passed at Washington after 16 months of laborious log rolling, will exact unconscionable prices from American consumers and will prove a serious handicap to America's export trade.

CONSUMERS PAY

"It may provide some protection for a few favored industries," he said, "but the American consumers will pay for that out of their diminished incomes. Angry foreign nations will retaliate by establishing barriers in reprisal which will outlaw our foreign trade and reduce the opportunities for employment among our working people.

Brewster, as was expected, broughet his campaign to a close with a bang that could be heard throughout the state. His final declaration was a challenge to the old guard Republicans who are supporting both Congressman Wallace H. White, Jr., and the wild spree of tariff legislation of the party leaders at Washington.

He manifested confidence in the outcome on Monday, reflecting the sentiment in Portland.

White's campaign managers predict he will win by 20,000 votes, but they say it with reservations. The opinion on the street is that the Monday shindy is a toss-up between them.

WET MAKES APPEAL

Brewster was preceeded on the radio in his final mesage by Dugald B. Dewar, the question mark of the campaign. Dewar is a valiant man, it may be seen, because he is running against Brewster and White as an unregenerate wet in a State which put prohibition into its constitution when most other states were regarding it as a philosophical discussion as vague as the Einstein theory.

"Appeal only to your honesty," said Dewar to his ether audience. "Let us be done with cants and hypocrisy and their stepchildren, the bootlegger and the hijacker. Maine is as wet today as on any day in her entire history. Poisoned liquor has usurped the place of healthful beverages while the illegal trafficker pockets the millions that would have gone into our National and State Treasuries to reduce our taxes.

"If you vote for Brewster or White, you vote for the continuance of these evil conditions. If you vote for me, you are voting in protest of these conditions and for a return to the path of true temperance."

Upon the size of Dewar's vote depends largely the outcome of the contest, it is said by the wiseacres. Their hunch is that he will attract the votes of people who would otherwise mark their ballots against Brewster.

Meanwhile Governor Tudor Gardiner, of the Gardiners of Gardiner, Me., bade his audience have faith n the Pine Tree State, which eant, by modest implication, faith s his own administration, he will e renominated, no doubt, although is only competitor, former Mayor Vilson of Bangor, will assert gain tonight in his closing peeches that Maine today is indeed fortunate to have a chance o escape from the incompetency f the existing regime.

Congressman White is concluding tour of the State calculated to efresh the acquaintanceships severed by his absence of 17 years in he Congress at Washington.

He has the unqualified backing f the regular Republican machine, n asset the value of which should ot be discounted by those brave nough to make predictions of the utcome.

200,000 SEE BIG REVERE PARADE

With 200,000 spectators crowding the line of march, Revere brought its Tercentenary program to a glorious close last night with a parade through the principal streets of the city.

Every available vantage point was massed with humanity as the 7000 marchers, 40 floats and 42 bands proceeded under the leadership of Mayor Casassa and the city council.

Included among the marchers were detachments of marines, sailors and regular army men. In addition the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and allied patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations were well represented.

Prominent in the line of march were 2500 school children, some on floats and others dressed to depict the advance of American civilization from Colonial times to the present. Peter F. Conley was chief marshal.

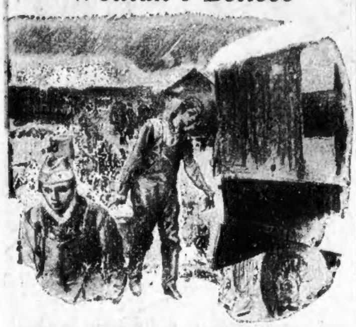
STEPDAUGHTERS of WAR by HELEN ZENNA SMITH

Smithy's Letters Home Hide Her Fears—They Wouldn't Believe



"IT IS such fun out here, and of course I'm loving every minute of it, it's so splendid to be really in it."

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Helen Smith, known as "Smithy," is a member of the English women's war ambulance corps in France. Her first convoy duty was a nightmare, and if it had not been for Tosh, a fellow-worker, she would have collapsed. She returned to a hardly eatable meal, half dead with fatigue and shaken in nerves. Tosh, the niece of an earl, is the roughest, most lovable girl in the unit. Only Tosh's shocking war vocabulary can adequately describe their pitiful situation. Their tyrannical commandant she has christened "Mrs. Itch." Smithy, Tosh, The B. F., Skinny, Etta Potato and The Bug share one room. A bath is out of the question, for there is only one pint of water among them.

CHAPTER 4

"I've lost a hairpin," says Etta Potato. "No, false alarm."

She smiles. Placid Etta Potato. Her chief worry in life is the fear of losing her hairpins. They are many and large, stout iron affairs with the black enamel worn completely away, and Etta Potato can be traced by them as effectively as the hare in a paper-chase. During a recent air-raid when her ambulance—fortunately empty—was knocked into a ditch by the impact of a bomb which fell in the next field, Etta Potato was found under the bonnet hunting for one of her lost hairpins. I watch her now carefully hairpinning her smooth, brown bun and I see her in about 60 years hence, placid, scarcely-lined and imperturbable, still fastening a smooth bun with hairpins. The bun will be white, but the hairpins will probably be the same.

Guns Boom
Tosh Hates Them

Booma-boom - booma-boom-boommm!

"God, I hate those bloody guns," mutters Tosh, and this time The B. F. is silent.

We stare ahead. We hate and dread the days following on the guns when they boom without interval. Trainloads of broken human beings—half-mad men pleading to be put out of their misery—torn and bleeding and crazed men pitifully obeying orders like a herd of senseless cattle, dumbly, pitifully straggling in the wrong direction as senseless as a flock of senseless sheep obeying a senseless leader, herded back into line by the orderly, the kind sheepdog with a "Now then, boys, this way. That's the ticket, boys," instead of a bark—men with faces bleeding through their hasty bandages—men with vacant eyes and mouths hanging foolishly apart dropping saliva and slime—men with minds mercifully gone—men only too sane, eyes horror-filled with blood and pain—

My last letter home opens before me, photograph clear, sent in response to innumerable complaints concerning the brevity of my crossed-out field postcards:

"It is such fun out here, and, of course, I'm loving every minute of it, it's so splendid to be really in it—"

The only kind of letter home they expect, the only kind they want, the only kind they will have.

Tell them that you hate it, tell them that you fear it, that you are as terror-stricken as you were when they left you alone in the dark in that big, quiet house on Wimbledon Common, you who had been accustomed to the cheery trams and rumbling motor busses of Shepherd's Bush—tell them that all the ideals and beliefs you ever had have crashed about your gun-deafened ears—that you don't believe in God or them or the infallibility of England or anything but bloody war and wounds and foul smells and smutty stories and smoke and bombs and lice and filth and noise, noise, noise.

Silly Girl
They Will Tell You

That you live in a world of cold, sick fear, a dirty word of darkness and despair—that you want to crawl ignominously home away from these painful writhing things that once were men, these shattered, tortured faces that dumbly demand what it's all about in God's name—that you want to find somewhere where life is quiet and beautiful and lovely as it was before the world turned khaki and blood colored—that you want to creep into a refuge where there is love instead of hate—

Tell them these things—and they will reply on pale mauve deckled-edged paper calling you a silly, hysterical little girl—"you always were inclined to exaggerate, darling"—and enclose a patent carbolized body belt—"the very thing for active service, dear, in case you encounter a stray 'bitey'"—(that's what you called a louse yourself hundreds of years ago: refined, weren't you?)—an iron tonic, some more aspirin tablets—

"Stick it, darling, go on doing your bit because England is

FIRE TRAPS WOMAN IN ELEVATOR

Rescuers Hack Through Steel Door to Save Employe in Kirstein Library

Imprisoned in an elevator in the Louis E. Kirstein library in City Hall ave., while a small fire sent up clouds of smoke from the pit of the shaft a few feet away, a woman and a boy were rescued by two policemen and three civilians who hacked their way through the steel door today.

The woman, who felt certain of death while the rescuers were hammering at her prison with crowbars and axes, and while smoke swirled all about her, is Johanna Walsh, 38, of 96 McBride st., Jamaica Plain.

When the door of the elevator was battered down, she was partly overcome from smoke.

The fire, according to the police, started in the motor of the elevator at the foot of the shaft, while the woman, using the elevator, was nearing the first floor.

The fire shut off the power and Miss Walsh was unable to open the automatic lock on the door, which can be opened only at floor levels.

As smoke poured up through the shaft, she screamed for help. Another employe of the library, Mrs. Della Sweeney, of 171 K st., So. Boston, heard the screams and she ran screaming into City Hall ave.

Patrolmen Charles Hoar and Joseph Brooks and John Fogarty, an employe of City Hall, George Kerrigan and George Perry responded. They were unable to open the door with their hands, so Fogarty ran to City Hall and secured an assortment of tools.

Meanwhile a fire alarm had been sounded and a rescue company resuscitated Miss Walsh.

MISS HESSION IS MARRIED

At a nuptial mass at 10 o'clock this morning at Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Miss Margaret Elizabeth Hession, daughter of James William Hession of Roxbury, became the bride of Gerard H. Slattery. Miss Hession is a graduate of Emanuel College while Mr. Slattery is a graduate of Boston College. He is now broadcasting director of a Boston advertising agency.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the University Club.

Following the reception Mr. Slattery and his bride left for a wedding trip by automobile to Canada. They will be at home at Perkins Manor in Jamaica Plain after August 1.

Disorder Is Quelled by Crowley

Police "Super" Then Hauls His Man 50 Yards to a Box as Crowd Looks On

Superintendent of Police Crowley returned to the ranks for a few hectic minutes today and proved that he, as the lowliest rookie, respects the order of Police Commr. Hultman that all intoxicated persons are to be arrested for their own safety.

The "Super" did his stuff in front of a large crowd of spectators on Warren ave., South End.

He was driving to his office when he saw a crowd gathered about a horse and wagon. He alighted from his car just in time to see the driver, James Brown of Rose st., jump from the wagon and start toward the head of his horse.

The superintendent shouted as the driver approached an alleged intoxicated man, James E. Egan of Compton st., South End.

After he had quelled the disorder and taken charge of Egan, the "Super" learned that he had staggered off the sidewalk, stopped the horse, pulled the reins from the driver's hands and was about to stage a driving act of his own.

Surrounded by a crowd, the superintendent took his prisoner through Warren ave. to a patrol box, 50 yards away.

1200 MERRY AT B. U. REUNION

More than 1200 members of the Alumni and senior class at Boston University made merry today at the annual reunion and outing at Nickerson Field, Weston. The seniors were inducted into the Alumni Association by President Daniel L. Marsh.

The feature of the reunion was the unveiling of a portrait of the late William E. Nickerson, donor of the athletic field, and a bronze tablet in the athetic house.

Tomorrow afternoon at Symphony Hall, President March will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to nearly 1500 graduates from the ten university departments. He will talk on "The Responsibility of Freedom."

Bankrupt Firm Has $1,081,949 Assets

Bankruptcy schedules filed in federal court today reveal that the firm of John A. Dunn Co. of Gardner, furniture manufacturer, which was petitioned into bankruptcy on April 29 last, has liabilities of $657,686 and assets of $1,081,949. Assets consist of real estate valued at $458,019, on which there are no mortgages; stock in trade, $140,000; machinery and tools, $239,519; debts due on open account, $112,450, and unliquidated claims, $99,000. The concern was petitioned into bankruptcy by a group of Boston and Worcester banks.

MANSFIELD IN WARNING TO B. U. CLASS

Tells Law Graduates Educational Specifications for Profession Should Be Higher

Scoring the ease with which lazy and inefficient men may be admitted to the bar in Massachusetts, Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, addressed the 170 members of the senior class at Boston University school of law, his Alma Mater, today.

"Massachusetts is woefully lax in its requirements as to general education," Mansfield told B. U.'s future lawyers. "We stand as number 32 in a list of 48 states. We ought now to raise these standards."

Mansfield in particular is opposed to the requirement which specifies a general education equivalent to two years in an evening high school or school of equal grade.

"It must be perfectly plain," he said, "that two years in an evening high school is a very slight preparation by way of general education to require of applicants for admission to the bar.

INADEQUATE TRAINING

"And note that it is not necessary that the student should possess this primary education before he commences his law studies. The result is that a student who has not even had the equivalent of a grammar school education may begin the study of law and at the same time try to acquire the general education sufficient for him to step over this very slight obstacle set up by the statutes of Massachusetts."

He declared he was not opposed to the poor man's entrance into the legal field, nor did he advocate the necessity of a university degree; only that the student's training be adequate.

SUGGESTS REMEDY

"If we could eliminate the word 'evening,'" he continued, "so that the applicant must at least have the equivalent of two years' attendance and have fulfilled the requirements of a day high school or school of equal grade, we would be taking a still greater stride forward."

Dean Homer Albers announced student awards to Joseph E. Goodbar of Boston for the highest scholastic standing and for the student with the "greatest ability."

Morris Anapolsky of Dorchester received the annual prize of legal books which goes to the student most worthy of such a gift.

The Leila J. Robinson prize, given by the Kappa Beta Pi legal sorority to the woman who has completed three years of residence work and who has shown outstanding scholarship, moral integrity and judgment, went to Pearl Horvitz of Fall River.

Blonde Kiss Is Worth $100, Court Rules

A kiss, stolen from blonde beauty reclining in a dental chair has a value of $100—but no free dental work in addition.

This, in effect, was the decision handed down by Judge Arthur P. Stone in East Cambridge District court today in the cross-suits of Miss Charlotte Jordan, 23, pretty blonde, and Dr. Newton A. DeWitt, who fixes the teeth of the elite in his offices in Harvard sq., Cambridge.

Miss Jordan pouted a little, when one of her kisses was valued at only a paltry $100. She claimed in her suit such an osculatory favor from her fair lips was worth $1000.

The court action was the aftermath of some dental work—and an alleged stolen kiss in the office of Dr. DeWitt.

Miss Jordan failed to pay the bill of $51 rendered by the dentist for his work—dental, not osculatory. Miss Jordan didn't pay and the dentist had her haled into small claims court.

The girl promptly countered with a cross suit, claiming damages of $1000 for the unwelcome kiss.

Judge Stone decided that out of the $100 for the kiss Miss Jordan should pay the dentist his bill of $51.

But anyway the case is figured, the kiss is valued at $100, for Miss Jordan has $49 in cash and $51 worth of dental work in her attractive mouth—all as the price of a kiss.

Hub Marks Flag Day; Emblem 153 Years Old

This is Flag Day, with the national emblem, 153 years old, displayed on every public building and school house in Boston and on many stores and homes.

The day, birthday of the Stars and Stripes, is sponsored by the United States Flag Association and it has been a yearly event since President Wilson, in 1916, issued a proclamation [illegible]ling for a general observance of the day. Before that time observance of the day was only sporadic.

STATE SHOULD LEARN WHY PRISONERS GO WRONG

Thayer Tells Social Workers Punishment Should Then Fit Man Not His Crime

That the criminal law should punish men for what they are rather than for they do was the suggestion offered today to the National Social Work Conference in session here by Walter N. Th[illegible]yer, Jr., superintendent of Maryland prisons.

"Crime is not the cause, but the result, he said; "not the disease, but the symptom. An effort should be made during the period of imprisonment to ascertain just why the man has become a criminal.

"Up to the present time we have been satisfied to determine the amount of damage he has succeeded in doing and assess a penalty that seems to us proportionate. But the degree of offence represents only what he was capable of doing under the existing circumstances.

NO TWO ALIKE

"The difference between petit and grand larceny is fixed by the amount stolen, and this certainly was no measure of the desire or motive of the criminal. The law gives him credit for circumstances over which he had no control.

"No two criminals can be given the same treatment for purposes of reform. The individual should receive society's attention on the basis of what caused him to commit crime.

"We must take into account the fact that 95 per cent of the prisoners who enter an institution are later released," concluded Mr. Thayer. "Less than ½ per cent are under capital or life sentences, or die in prison."

Discussing the problem of race improvement, T. Wingate Todd, profesor of anatomy at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, O., said:

"Welfare is a man's problem, but the production of citizenry is a woman's. No population theory or policy can be truly objective unless it takes account of the interests and probable responses of women."

The congestions in our prisons are not due to an increase in lawlessness, but to the increased length in sentence imposed by the courts on the usual type of malefactor, George W. Kirchwey, head of the department of criminology of the New York School of Social Work and former warden of Sing Sing prison, told the delegates yesterday.

CONFERENCE CLOSES

This increased severity of the courts was also blamed by the criminologist for the recent prison outbreaks throughout the country.

Legislation of the type of the Baumes law in New York, Dr. Kirchwey declared, was responsible for the overcrowding of prisons, and tendencies to become more severe with criminals was prevalent throughout the country.

OLD TOWN HALL, MARBLEHEAD

In navigating the rambling streets of Marblehead, a small square is discovered, in which was erected a Town Hall over two centuries ago. The date assigned to this meeting-place of the orators of the community is 1727.

Marblehead is unique on this side of the ocean. The houses have been built "kitty-cornered," anywhere, facing any direction, on ledges, along the waterfront. As one authority quotes:

"How one of those ancient mariners rolling heavily homeward after a night's carouse could have found his own dwelling, is a mystery."

WASHINGTON GUEST

When George Washington made his farewell visit to New England after the war he came to see the quaint town whose men had followed him from Cambridge to Yorktown. In this port was recruited the famous "amphibious" regiment which crossed the Delaware at the battle of Trenton.

Marblehead was settled by fishermen from England in 1629. Legends are numerous about the early fishing village which in 1707-8 was represented as the headquarters of smugglers. Quelch, a pirate, and seven of his group were taken there, and villagers disgorged the silver plate and melted gold coins at the rather firm request of the Governor of Boston. Later shipbuilding became a major industry.

FIRST MEETING

The first town-meeting was held on March 17, 1728, in the building shown above. Here Lee and Orne roused the ire of the people against tyranny, and Elbridge Gerry showed his ability as an orator. Here was recruited the first town regiments in the wars of 1775 and 1861. The Hall has been called "The Faneuil Hall of Marblehead." It is now, fittingly, the headquarters for the Grand Army.

Marblehead can be reached by train, or automobile along Route No. 1A to Swampscott and by following the shore line.

Tomorrow: Samuel Stetson Residence, at Hanover Center, Mass.

Roughan Will Case Settled by Court

Following the death of two beneficiaries in the will of Michael Roughan of Charlestown, the full bench of the Supreme Court yesterday instructed the administrator to divide the residue between a California bank and Roughan's daughter.

The Southern Trust & Commerce Bank of San Diego will receive two-thirds as executor of the will of Robert Roughan, one of the beneficiaries. Winifred Guarente, daughter of the testator, is to receive one-third of the fund in trust. On her death the remainder will go to her children or heirs-at-law.

HEARST IS HOST TO MARKSMEN

Washington, June 13 (INS)—Winners in the William Randolph Hearst rifle competition among R. O. T. C. cadets in high schools, universities, colleges and military academies throughout the United States and its possessions, will arrive at the Hotel Mayflower tomorrow as the guests of Mr. Hearst. There are about 30 persons in the party, including the victorious young marksmen, rifle coaches, a representative of the War Department, Herman Black and Jesse Krueger of the Chicago American.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will present medals to the ranking contestants in the national and sectional championships on Monday. Plans have been made for a reception at the White House by President Hoover on the same day.

The competition has been conducted under the general auspices of the War Department with ranking officers in each locality acting as judges. The targets were examined and final selections made by Maj.-Gen. Frank Parker, commanding officer of the Sixth Corps area, who was designated to act as principal referee.

Letters From American Readers

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

How long is this country going to stand for the killing of 30,000 people a year by motor cars?

How long are we going to tolerate the ruthlessness of a hit-and-run driver knocking a 22-year-old girl down on Revere Beach Parkway, Everett, yesterday, leaving her prone on the hard pavement, and then stepping on the gas to avoid detection. The young woman told the police that he wore a red sweater. He is red in tooth and claw, and needs that color wherever he drives that car of his.

Auto accidents are so numerous that often there are not nurses enough at hospitals to look after the sufferers.

At the meanness of a certain type of auto drivers, speeding ahead of you on crossings, missing you by an inch and a half, I would like to draw a pistol, threatening their life, as they do not care a picayune about your life. How long will these drivers abuse our patience? Does nobody care?

HENRY T. CRAMPTON.

Favors Cock Fighting Without Spurs

Editor Boston American:

I may astonish your readers by declaring that I like to see cock fighting rather than a prize fight. The law is against cock fighting. But if they would leave the spurs off the birds and not allow them to fight to a finish, I really see no harm in this sport. Apply some of the rules of prize fighting to cock fighting.

Some years ago, in a small town of this Commonwealth, I lived opposite a man who had a few of these fighting cocks. In removing from the town, he left one of these fighters behind. This bird I looked after for some time, until I could restore him to his rightful owner.

But the bird enjoyed fighting. He would come into my yard in fighting trim and attack my leg in good knockout style. We had a short scrimmage. But he never had enough. He would follow and attack me in the rear. He was so gamey that he ought to have attacked some body of his size. He was literally longing for a scrap. Why not give leeway to it, instead of taking his natural instinct away?

F. L. CRESSEY.

Dinner for 10 Would Have Brought Them

Editor Boston American:

A Rodondo Beach, Calif., resident invited a number of his friends to attend church in celebration of his birthday. Out of 44 invited, only five attended. A Massachusetts man caught the idea and in the western part of this state invited ten of his friends to celebrate his birthday by attending church, only one was found in his pew.

Evidently celebrating birthdays by going to church do not match each other. Try some other method is my advise to these innovators.

How About Trips for Gold Star Fathers

Editor Boston American:

The Bay State mothers will sail June 28 to visit the graves of their sons in France. What a comfort and a pleasure this will be to them!

How about the Gold Star fathers? They would like to go upon such a visitation to represent the dead mothers of their boys. Not a few of them, were these mothers alive today, would choose to go upon this journey. Nothing would appeal to them more than this. The fathers of these boys feel that way. They would be glad to go and pay their tribute to the boys at their graves. Mothers would have them go if they could speak.

Have the fathers the same feelings that the mothers have? Some of them are alone mourning their losses. Why not give them a share in the comfort which the mothers of those boys are now experiencing?

Study Your Man If You Seek Money

Editor Boston American:

If you want to get money for education out of a man of large means, study your manner of approaching him. This is more important than it is at first apparent. It works well.

The principal of a small academy in Massachusetts has this gift of approaching men of wealth. He wrote to a man of means who had given liberally to colleges and well known schools.

The principal stated his case before this man along these lines: "There is no great reason why you should be interested in my small academy, but there is great need of financial aid." It took. The principal in the next mail received a check for $20,000. If you know how to get money, you will get it. Study your man or woman. The manner of asking is better than a large amount of statistics. This is the reason why some men get money more easily than others for education. They study methods long before they make the attack. N. M. McKENZIE.

Changes His Position On Prohibition Law

Editor Boston American:

For a long time I was in favor of prohibition. When the evil fruits of this sumptuary law became apparent my position changed. Now that the Government resorts to poison in order to enforce the law I am opposed to it. What would we say if the watchmakers began to charge their watches with dynamite to prevent robbers from stealing them? I ask: Is it civilized to poison alcohol because some people persist in drinking liquor in spite of the prohibition law? National prohibition has had its day. Let every state settle this matter to the satisfaction of its own citizens. That's civilized and sensible. J. COLLINS.

Wants to Know Who Wrote About Kissing

Editor Boston American:

Can any of your readers tell me who said this: "Kissing, like washing, is a habit in the West. It is a rite in the East. The Latins have made of it an art."

In Western Arabia, I have understood that the judge kisses the condemned criminal after pronouncing judgment. What an impressive scene would this be in our courts here, if the judge would give the condemned criminal a good smack.

Why Boston Schools for Communists?

Editor Boston American:

Why should there be in Greater Boston schools for Communists? They are here in East Cambridge. They are to be found a short distance north of Minneapolis. This is what Representative Johnson of Hoquiam, Washington, has been declaring lately. Merchants in certain sections support them, because they are threatened by boycotts, if they fail to respond.

If these conditions are true—and I have used every means to confirm them—I think it is about time that we challenged these Communists to a debate on Americanism. We are liberal in this country, allowing all sorts and conditions to make this the land of the free. I do not care to be unjust in my statement, but I would like to ask Communists, if they had insects biting them all day long, all night long, would they allow them to do this. There is an analogy here. M. N. MICHAELSON.

New Church

There was dedicated this past week a beautiful Methodist church of colonial style in Winthrop. Dr. C. Oscar Ford, the present minister, is receiving many congratulations for such a splendid building and so adequate to take care of the needs of his parish.

Dr. Stezle Makes Church News Study

The Rev. Charles Stezle, formerly well known for his efforts to bring the church and labor into sympathetic understanding, is now making a study of church news in the daily and weekly press. He says of the present situation: "We know there has been a marked increase of interest among the daily newspapers of the country in matters pertaining to religion and the Church. First: in the amount of space given to religious news, and second: in the designation of competent men and women to edit the church news of the community." He continues: "During past years I personally spent a minimum of $10,000 in helping to create a greater interest in religious news and general promotional work in behalf of the churches. I want now to check up on the whole business and see where we are coming out." Mr. Stezle at Metropolitan Tower, 1 Madison ave., New York city, would be glad to hear from any lay readers on the place they think church news is taking in the local press.

Mr. and Mrs. Root Off for Chicago

The Rev. E. Tallmadge Root and his wife have gone to Chicago to attend two national conferences. A gathering of executive secretaries of church federations throughout the United States is held in the Windy City June 16 to 20. Mr. Root will attend as the representative of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, probably for the last time, as he resigns from his long service in Boston next September. Mrs. Root is delegate to the national conference of Women's Church Societies, meeting at the same time as the men secretaries.

GRAHAM TAYLOR'S BOOK

Chicago has known three outstanding citizens who have devoted their lives to the less fortunate and to the great mass of people in congested districts. Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Miss Mary MacDowall of the University Settlement, and Mr. Graham Taylor of Chicago Commons. Dr. Taylor began his citizenship in Chicago the year of the World's Fair, 1893, and has lead a movement for a better and cleaner city ever since. He has been in Boston the past week speaking and taking part in discussions. His book just published on "Pioneering on Social Frontiers" for those who understand the spirit, is full of thrills and adventures which make as good reading as many another "Western" story along very different lines. The book is intimate and personal, and moves like a movie.

K. OF C.

The Boston headquarters of the supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus opened on Tuesday evening in room 532 of the Statler Building, with state officers of the Massachusetts state council and sub-committee members assembled at the first meeting.

Supreme Director and State Deputy John L. Swift, general chairman of the supreme convention to be held here Aug. 19-21, presided.

The headquarters of the convention will function from now through the sessions of the supreme meeting and will be open daily to give information regarding the convention.

CHURCH OF PRESIDENTS

There will be a special historical service at the old granite church in Quincy July 13th as an opening event in the Old Home Week to be kept by the City of Quincy. This service will be largely one of music and hymn singing beginning back with the first forms of church choir. The Rev. H. H. Saunderson of the Brighton Unitarian Church will read passages from an historic sermon once preached by the Rev. Mr. Wheelwright that so stirred the Puritan fathers that they sent the Rev. Wheelwright to other parts. The Rev. Arthur W. Whitney is preparing the program.

CHURCHES

HERE AND THERE AMONG THE CHURCHES

The Massachusetts Federation of Churches in its latest bulletin draws attention to the coming referendum vote on the bill which would if passed eliminate the steel trap. The churches are strong for destroying all steel traps that catch and torture animals. The statement in the bulletin is to the effect that there are one hundred million wild animals tortured to death every year, and one hundred thousand of these are in Massachusetts.

CENTER METHODIST

The well known bishop, Wilbur K. Thirfield, of the Methodist church will be the preacher in this Malden church next Sunday. Girls and boys of this church are looking forward to a vacation in camp Can-Me-Cno on the shores of Lake Winnepesaukee.

IMPROVE PRISONS

The secretary of an Ohio commission appointed by the present governor of that state to study into more enlightened methods for treating prisoners was here during the past week. Mr. Rufus E. Miles, when asked whether the recent disastrous prison fire in Ohio would result in any radical improvements, said he was quite sure it would bring definite changes. His commission is making a thorough study of prison methods both in Europe and in America. Among other things he says: "Ohio faces the necessity of replanning its prison system. Merely to prevent a repetition of the penitentiary disaster will not be enough. The state must develop a penal system designed for the scientific treatement of offenders. For this purpose the widest experience and the wisest counsel should be sought."

CHARLES ST. METHODIST

The Rev. J. Albert Sterrett of the Charles St. Methodist church has accepted a call to St. John's church, Cleveland. His Boston parishioners believe they should be able by united effort to recall their beloved pastor back to the Hub, and are already seeking ways and means for such an effort.

JOASH DAY.

The Melrose Methodist Church with its fine new parish house finds itself facing a mortgage of $35,000 and has determined to wipe this out at the first possible moment. Joash Day will mean tomorrow renewed pledges, or first pledges to take care of the heavy incumbrance. There will be a grand envelope processional. In the morning the Rev. C. W. Jeffras will preach again on "Pentecost."

ST. STEPHENS.

The Rev. James T. Hamilton of St. Mary's Church, Charlestown, will be the preacher at the "Little Flower" novena next Thursday, when four separate services will be held. Fr. Hamilton will preach at 5:20 and at 7:45.

PROSPECT CHURCH

Immigrants entering this port at East Boston were greeted by a strange kind of reception last Sunday afternoon when a Bible class of men from the Prospect Congregational Church, Cambridge, entered the immigration station and began to sing. None of the immigrants understood the words sung, but apparently were able to translate the spirit among the men who had come as an expression of good will. This class of singers has given a number of such concerts at homes for aged and at city homes.

BOSTON COMMON

Clergymen who will be heard on Boston Common tomorrow afternoon in a program prepared by the Greater Boston Federation of Churches come from Concord, Somerville and Newton, the Revs. Austill, Dexter and Radcliffe.

DR. WILLIAM AULL ON JOASH

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Somerville will listen tomorrow morning to a sermon by the minister on King Joash. This will be in preparation for a pageant on the subject the following Sunday. The religious drama is announced as "thrilling" and will be given in the main auditorium.

"GREEN PASTURES"

Dr. William L. Stidger will take for his theme in the Copley Methodist Church tomorrow morning the negro spiritual play that is now running in New York city with tremendous success and which recently received the prize as the best play of the year. The play treats of sacred subjects in a manner to mix laughter with tears and serious thinking.

EDITOR VISITS ICELAND

The Rev. Albert Dieffenbach, editor of the Christian Register, will leave Montreal today for a visit to Iceland. He will take with him the greetings of his native state, Maryland, to the Icelandic Parliament.

Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams will preside over meetings of the League of Neighbors while the editor is gone.

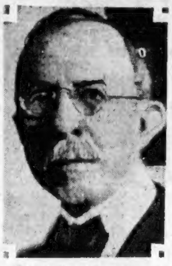
Christian Science

"God, the Preserver of Man," is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon, which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 15.

The Golden Text is: "Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee. Redeem Israel, O, God, out of all his troubles" (Psalms 25:21,22).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people from henceforth even for ever" (Psalms 125:1,2).

Dr. Taylor—80



One of the most revered and admired of all the social workers who have been visiting Boston this past week, Dr. Graham Taylor, 30 years head of the Chicago Commons social settlement, stands out pre-eminently. Next to Miss Jane Addams he is dean of head workers.

Rev. George L. Paine

The Rev. George Lyman Paine, executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches is preparing for a trip and visit to Russia this coming summer. He will leave the latter part of the month, and join the "Open Road" tour.

FIRST METHODIST

Sunday morning at 10:45 the Rev. Harry Belmont Hill, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Temple st., Beacon Hill, will continue his series of sermons on "The Meaning of Pentecost" by using the theme, "The Witness of the Spirit," First Church Quartet will furnish the music.

RADIO HOUR

"Cardinal Newman" will be the subject for a radio talk at the Catholic Truth Hour tomorrow afternoon, 1 to 2. Dr. Joseph J. Reilly, professor of English at Hunter College, New York, will be the speaker. Fr. Michael J. Ahern will as usual conduct the question and answer hour. A musical program will be given under the direction of Dr. George L. Dwyer.

TREMONT TEMPLE

"Is Mr. Wickersham Right?" and "Why Is Will Rogers So Popular?" These are two questions which the Rev. J. P. Brougher will answer tomorrow evening preceding his sermon. He calls them prelude questions. His evening sermon will be on: "The Barbed Wire Fence." In the morning he will take for his theme: "Pep and Power" and how to attain it.

FORD HALL PICNIC

Roger Babson and the Babson Institute will be hosts to the Ford Hall Folks next Tuesday. An invitation has been extended to the visitors to attend graduation exercises of the school. Dr. Will Durant will be the speaker for this occasion. There will be a full program with plays, athletic sports and tramps through the woods.

Second Church Has 125th Anniversary

The Second Church of Dorchester, Codman sq., celebrated its 125th anniversary last Monday and Tuesday by a historic pageant in Wales hall. Rehearsals for this event have been in process for many weeks and the hall was filled with a large audience of people interested in seeing the past brought vividly before them in color, costumes, words and song. Dr. Vaughan Dabney has recently been given a degree by the school of divinity at the University of Chicago.

The Rev. Edward E. Aiken, Jr., who for a number of years has been at the head of religious education of this church, has resigned. His many friends are planning a farewell reception. Next Sunday at this church the Rev. Russell Henry Stafford of the Old South Congregational Church will preach. Dr. and Mrs. Dabney will sail for Europe tomorrow. They will, among other things, visit the Passion Play at Oberammergau and also Palestine.

Over 1400 in Sunday School

There will be a Children's Day program at the Dudley St. Baptist Church tomorrow morning, when various departments of the school will take part in the program.

Dr. Arthur T. Brooks has developed a "Program Extraordinary" for the evening when he will give his travel talk with illustrations on a journey through Turkey. A religious drama, "Cleopas," will be given by the young people, in which the life of Christ is depicted between the time of the Resurrection and the Ascension. A junior chorus of 75 will render a musical program.

The Dudley St. Church Sunday School is one of the largest in the state.

CHURCHES MUST BE TRAINED TO SERVE

That Protestant churches are a last awakening to the necessity o training for scientific social service in connection with all religiou endeavor, is the declaration of Dr Worth M. Tippy, secretary of th Federal Council of Churches wh has been in Boston for the pas week. For the first time, he said the Federal Council has definitel co-operated with the Nationa Conference of Social Agencies. Dr Tippy also said that the experiment has proven the great valu of such association. A booth o information established by the Federal Council in the ballroom of th Statler Hotel has been a cente for a continual line of visitor wanting information about th churches and their attitude on social service.

A research for the purpose f finding out what courses in divinity schools give training in scientific service to the young ministers has discovered the fact, said Dr. Tippy, that less than 30 pe cent have nothing of the sort.

"There must be a readjustment on the basis of the individual and of the family, and every minister should know the methods of scientific charity, not to be a social worker as such, but to direct intelligent endeavor in his parish and in the community in which he is located." Further, he said: "We shall go to the next national conference with an entire program next year when the social workers assemble in Minneapolis."

There were six of the Federa Council secretaries in Boston taking part in the various discussions and Bishop Francis McConnell head of the council, has spoke frequently.

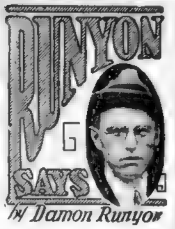
Land Boy Favorite to Win Challenge Cup

FAVORITES IN EASTERN HORSE CLUB MEET AT BROOKLINE TODAY



by Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, JUNE 14 (US)—Well, the clients are certainly having a grand time re-hashing that one.

I refer, of course, to the little affair between Herr Max Schmeling, and Jack Sharkey.

No one denies that Sharkey fouled the Black Uhlan of the Rhine in the fourth round, but many are mumbling that it was a tough break for Sharkey when he was apparently winning like Gallant Fox beating Whichone.

On the other duke, there are just as many who are saying that the awkward, shuffling Schmeling was commencing to come on after having taken everything Sharkey had to offer, and that the German would have won anyway.

This of course is mere conjecture. The fact is that the new heavyweight champion of the world was badly out scored up to the instant Sharkey let fly that long left hook which landed about a foot below Schmeling's lower vest button.

It was more of an attempt at a left uppercut than it was a left hook. Thousands saw it. Some of Sharkey's most devoted friends admit the illegality of the poke, and attempt to excuse it only on the ground that Schmeling was jumping up in the air when it landed, so that the blow necessarily fell low.

It would be silly to suggest that the punch was anything but accidental, as silly as a denial of it being foul. Sharkey was boxing neatly, and well within himself up to that instant. His bad judgment, it seemed to me, was in even thinking of throwing body punches as long as he was winning with head blows.

Many Fans Think Jack Lost His Head

YET I FIND MANY CLIENTS who are firmly of the opinion that Sharkey shot his bolt in his attack in the third round when it looked as if he had Schmeling rambling up queer street, and who argue that his failure to drop the German with his "Sunday punches," as the boys term a man's best belts, caused Sharkey to lose his head, and start heaving 'em wild.

"Schmeling wasn't hitting Sharkey often, but he was hurting him when he did hit him," declared one feverish patient to me after the battle. "The German is a slow beginner, like Battling Nelson, and Jim Jeffries and strictly a catcher in the early rounds, but when he finally starts driving, he is unbeatable. I'll admit he got an all around boxing lesson from Sharkey up to the time of the foul, but he wasn't damaged and kept coming out of his corner stronger every round. Nelson and Jeffries wouldn't have been champions of ten round fights, would they?"

I must agree that whatever his scientific shortcomings may be, our new champ can "take it." How he can "take it!" Time and again Sharkey cooly measured him and put everything back of his burly frame on right hand smacks to the button, but Schmeling just kept plodding in. Even Sharkey looked startled a couple of times when Schmeling failed to fall.

Foul Is a Foul, Says Runyon

HOW BADLY THE FOUL punch hurt Schmeling is beside the question. I contend a foul is a foul. The rules allow plenty of area for fair punches, and a man ought to hold his punches inside that area without any difficulty.

Sharkey had the foul background of the Scott fight against him from the beginning, just as Scott had the foul background of the Von Porat fight running to his disadvantage.

I heard some debate after the battle as to whether the claim of Schmeling to the world's title would be allowed on account of unhappy ending of his fight with Sharkey. I never heard a more ridiculous argument in my life.

The New York State Athletic Commission officially sanctioned the fight as for the world's title. The National Boxing Association, covering some 26 states, recognized it as for the title.

And a fight that is decided by foul is as conclusive as far as the record is concerned as one that is decided by knockout, or decision on points. Any argument to the contrary is asinine.

New Bout for Heavy Title Planned for September

By JACK CONWAY

New York, June 14—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, has notified Frank Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden, he is willing to sign the German heavyweight for a return bout with Jack Sharkey in September.

"If Arthur Bulow, Schmeling's German pilot, will take $10,000 for what interest he has in Max's contract you can announce the match," Jacobs told Bruen.

Jack Conway

Bulow's contract does not expire until October 1. Under the terms of this agreement, he receives 25 per cent of the money received by Max in the Sharkey battle. In the event Bulow wont sell his interest in the contract Jacobs declares Schmeling will not enter a ring until next year. At that time Jacobs will be the sole manager of the German.

Meanwhile Damon Runyon, acting for the Milk Fund Committee, has asked Buckley to sign for a return bout with Schmeling in June 1931.

The Milk Fund would like to hold the contest in Chicago. Runyon believes that a year's ballyhoo would result in a gate of $1,500,000 when Jack and Max meet again.

Schmeling is experiencing difficulty in [illegible] himself as world's champion.

Muldoon Says Sharkey Knocked Out Schmeling

William Muldoon, the [illegible] of the New York athletic commission, believed Sharkey knocked Schmeling out with a fair punch. He insists that Max should have been counted out.

Muldoon is also a member of the Muldoon-Tunney trophy committee. The name of the winner of the Schmeling-Sharkey bout was to be added to the list of champions on the famous trophy.

Muldoon declared that Schmeling's showing against Sharkey does not warrant his name being placed on the trophy.

While the controversy over the "foul or fair" thing waxes warm, boxing experts are almost unanimous in declaring Sharkey won even [illegible]. They cannot see any reason why he should have tried to foul Schmeling. Those who are [illegible] followers who assert the disputed punch was low admit it was unintentional.

Farley Will Recognize Schmeling as Champion

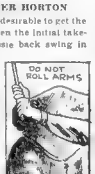
Johnny Buckley left for Boston today. He will return here next week to appear before the New York Athletic Commission. Buckley will demand that the commission order Sharkey and Schmeling box again.

The commission will take action on whether it will recognize Schmeling as champion. James A. Farley, chairman of the commission indicated he would favor recognizing Max as head of the heavyweight division.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

It is so highly desirable to get the first half, or even the initial take-off of the brassie back swing in smooth working order that golfers will never harm themselves in the least by practicing the take-off until they have it thoroughly worked into muscles. This is the one part of the swing, I think, that requires practice and, in your favor, it can be practiced out in the back yard just as well as at the golf course; doubtless more to your improvement there since no first tee or golfing companions would be rattling clubs in your hearing. This take-off is made wholly with your hands in control of the club. Your grip is firmly loose and, with your hands, you move the club backward, making your hands pass over your right toe. This begins to draw your shoulders around, but during this action your wrists stay as they were in the address. Your weight goes over against your right leg, which stiffens to restrain it. Practice that until you can do it with smoothness and naturalness of action.



SANDE LOSES CLOSE RACE

Aqueduct, N. Y., June 14 (US)—There was a duel staged between the Titans of riding, Laverne Fator and Earl Sande, yesterday. The dramatic battle was staged in the Hanover Handicap, and Fator triumphed with Patroness.

Sande was forced to follow Patroness across the line with Flying Gal, the 9-to-10 favorite.

For years both rode for the late Sam Hildreth when he was sweeping the turf with the Rancocas Farm horses. Sande, later on, severed his connections with the Rancocas folks, but Fator remained and made himself immensely rich.

The separation did not affect their friendship, but each always did his best to outride the other. In the Hanover, Fator stole the lead at the home turn while Sande charged after him with the favorite. Coming down the stretch, Fator rode like a little demon.

At the 16th pole Sande got the side of Fator, but the latter reached for his whip and the duel was on. Patroness won by a length.

$50,000 DERBY RUN TODAY

Chicago, June 14 (US)—Fourteen horses, of which probably 11 will start, have been named to race for a $50,000 bag of gold in the 22d running of the American Derby at Washington Park today. Gallant Knight is expected to finish first, Ned O. second and the filly Snowflake third.

Fillies seldom win a big derby, but Snowflake, owned by Walter J. Salmon of New York, must be given a royal chance.

Another filly, Alcibiades, owned by H. P. Headley of Kentucky, must be given serious consideration.

E. F. Pritchard's Tannery is the big puzzle of the race. If he runs as well as his backers think he can run, he'll win sure. But this colt has yet to demonstrate that he has derby class.

Michigan Boy is a rather good colt, possibly just short of [illegible] but he must be given a chance.

Herman Is Still Leading National League Hitters

New York, June 14 (AP)—Another week of the 1930 baseball season is history and still Babe Herman clings to his National League batting championship, according to the figures released today and including Wednesday's games.

The slugging Brooklyn outfielder dropped four points in five games, but his .415 average tops his nearest rival by eight points.

Riggs Stephenson, back in the Cubs lineup after a layoff, maintained his rank as runner-up to the Robins' slugger, although losing five points in six games. His average at the end of Wednesday's game read .407, just one point more than Bill Terry, the Giants' powerful hitter. Chuck Klein moved into a threatening position as he clubbed out 15 hits in five games to move up into fourth place among the regulars with an average of .405.

Herman Still Leads N. L. Batters

While keeping his position at the head of the batting column, Herman was forced to relinquish a few of his other honors. Terry took the leadership in runs and hits, counting 52 of the former and cracking out 82 of the latter, two more than his Brooklyn rival.

Hack Wilson, who is showing the way in home runs with 18 was not so powerful in driving in runs during the week, Klein going out in front. The Phillies' clouter has driven in 59—14 during the week—to lead Wilson by five runs. Walter Berger of the Braves trails Hack by one home run.

Frankie Frisch failed to hit a double during the week's play but held on to the leadership with 21 two-base blows. Kiki Cuyler smashed one triple to increase his advantage to two over his team-mate, Woody English. Kiki has cracked out nine three-base hits. Cuyler also holds the honor in base stealing with 15 thefts, two more than last week.

Hogan, Giants' Catcher, Batting for .402

Behind the quartet of leading batters follow: Hogan, New York, .402, Heilman, Cincinnati, .395, P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .386, Bissonette, Brooklyn, .380, Frisch, St. Louis, .368, and Grantham, Pittsburgh and O'Doul, Philadelphia, .365.

Adolfo Luque, the veteran Cuban, chalked up another victory to maintain his position at the head of the pitchers column.

He has won six games without a defeat while Bob Osborn of Chicago ranks second with four victories and no defeats. Brooklyn lost three points in club batting but still leads the league with an average of .324 while Cincinnati clung to his fielding leadership at .977.

Tiger Star in Over 150 Sport Contests

Princeton, N. J., June 14—When Eddie Wittmer of Southampton, N. Y., plays in the Yale-Princeton baseball game today he will complete a record of participating in more than 150 sport contests and earning eight major and one minor athletic awards.

The athlete graduates with three letters for varsity football, three for baseball and three for basketball.

Bertazzolo Will Fight Heeney Here

Tom Heeney, who fought Gene Tunney for the world's heavyweight championship, will appear in a Boston ring, Monday night, June 30. Last night a wire was received from Eddie Mack, who is in New York, to the effect that he had signed the "Hard Rock" from Down Under for a 10-round bout with Ricardo Bertazzolo, under Argonne A. A. auspices. The fight will be held at Mechanics building.

Star Eli Hurler Out of Tiger Tilt

New Haven, Conn., June 14—Roswell H. (Hoppy) Rudd, Yale's star pitcher will not play against Princeton in their second game of the three game series today.

The athletic association announced that "lack of condition" would keep Rudd, a senior, out of the remaining games this year. He has been troubled with a bad arm.

Rudd, who was ineligible in his sophomore and junior years, has been the mainstay of the Eli team this spring.

Ned Jennison will twirl in his stead. Yale won the first game from the Tigers and [illegible] the series to [illegible].

Vermont Defeats St. Lawrence, 10 to 1

Burlington, Vt., June 14—Vermont defeated the St. Lawrence nine here yesterday, 10 to 1, with the former closing its intercollegiate season without a single defeat. Rutowski, Vermont hurler, hit one of the longest home runs ever seen on the local diamond.

Senators Trade Goslin for Manush and Crowder

St. Louis, June 14 (AP)—Leon "Goose" Goslin, hard-hitting outfielder of the Washington Senators, has been traded to the St. Louis Browns for Heinie Manush, outfielder, and "General" Alvin Crowder, a pitcher. According to Bill Fred, Browns' business manager, the deal was a straight player trade with no cash involved.

The trade was engineered via the telephone last night by the presidents of both clubs, Phil Ball of the Browns and Clark Griffith of Washington.

Goslin will appear in a Brown uniform today and Manush in the Senators' outfield as the two teams open a four game series here today.

Fall River to Sign Stark, Soccer Star

Fall River, June 14—Archie Stark, premier center forward in the American soccer, will sign a contract this week-end with Fall River [illegible] he will [illegible] team [illegible] Kilmarnock Club of Scotland at the Stadium, Sunday.

Stark has not played soccer since the disbanding of the Bethlehem team a month ago, but he has kept in first-class condition and needs only a few workouts to be ready for the big game.

The Fall River Raffles, national amateur champions will meet the Victoria Mills here for a preliminary to the Kilmarnock game Sunday, meeting for the third time for the Lewis cup final, the other two games having ended in deadlocks.

Milton High Beats Quincy, 5-4, in 13th

Milton high nosed out Quincy high, 5 to 4, in a 13-inning encounter on Milton Town field yesterday. The winners scored the deciding run after two were out when Phinney doubled, sending Murphy home from second.

Quincy first broke the deadlock by tallying in the 11th, but Phinney's single evened the count again. Whearty, on the mound for Milton, went the full distance against the three pitchers Quincy was forced to use.

Leading Scottish Eleven Here

Kilmarnock, Scottish first division team, plays at Brooklyn today and at Tiverton tomorrow. The Scottish first division club, which has swept aside seven of nine opponents in Canada and tied two more, is the team that is following in the footsteps of the more illustrious Glasgow Rangers.

Kilmarnock has retained much of that veteran strength which outclassed the great Rangers, and it has added other promising talent, the two blending to make a smooth working machine.

Brooklyn is not taking chances with the visitors. The management has enlisted the services of four star players from the New York Nationals camp. The Sabbath encounter at Tiverton is attracting widespread New England interest and upward of 15,000 fans are expected to file into Mark Stadium with the hope that Fall River will do better than it fared at the expense of the Rangers.

PHIL SCOTT TO CHALLENGE MAX

Sanderstead, Surrey, England, June 14 (US) — Phil Scott, England's heavyweight champion, announced that he intends challenging Max Schmeling for the championship.

Scott said that he was not surprised at the outcome of last [illegible] New York [illegible] at Madison [illegible] to be a foul, dubbed the American [illegible] a specialist in the art of scientific fouling."

"I had always predicted that the result would be a fiasco," said Scott. "Even though Sharkey was leading comfortably he couldn't avoid exploiting his peculiar specialty of a knockout by a side blow, which he has practiced to perfection.

"Now that the title is in the hands of Schmeling, who, whatever his qualities as a boxer, is rated as a clean sportsman, there is a chance for us to arrange a real world title contest.

"I am ready at any time to defend the championship of the British Empire and I am anxious for a straightforward contest for the world's heavyweight title."

Tiger Four Wins Intercollegiate Polo

Princeton, N. J. June 14—Princeton's outdoor polo team reversed its two previous setbacks this season at the hands of the Pennsylvania Military College team by a 10 to 7 victory over the visitors on Devereaux Field yesterday afternoon in the opening game of the intercollegiate tournament. P. M. C. had beaten the Tigers twice this spring by one goal margins.

With Billy Post in the lineup yesterday for the first time this spring, Princeton put its strongest combination on the field.

Capt. Len Firestone and MacDonald divided scoring honors with three goals each, while Post and [illegible] visitors' goals, while Capt. Jack Pickering of Danvers, Mass., scored three [illegible].

Barnstable Wins Cape Cod Crown

Chatham, June 14—In a game marked by surperlative pitching, Barnstable high school won the interscholastic championship of Cape Cod here yesterday by defeating Orleans high, 2 to 0.

Cash of Barnstable fanned 18 and allowed two hits, while Eldredge, Orleans pitcher, struck out 15 and gave three hits.

SPRING MEET OF E. H. C. ON TODAY

PROGRAM AT CLYDE PARK

First race: The Millwood, Flat race.

Second race: The Myopia, Flat race.

Third race: 30th Running, The Challenge Cup, 'Chase.

Fourth race: 11th Running, The Chamblet Memorial, 'Chase.

Fifth race: Chestnut Hill Horse Show, 'Chase.

Sixth race: Norfolk Hunt Club, 'Chase.

Meet starts at 2:30 p. m.

Silks of the foremost stables of the country flash around the track and steeplechase routes this afternoon at The Country Club, Brookline, in the opening day of the annual spring meet of the Eastern Horse Club.

Two flat races are on the card but the events which will draw thousands of race enthusiasts are the four steeplechases.

Some of the greatest 'chasers in the world are entered in the quartet of events which send the thoroughbreds over the beautiful course, taking in some jumps famed wherever horsemen gather.

A wealth of tradition surrounds the 30th running of the Challenge Cup, a 'chase for hunters. This carries the entries over a two and one-half mile course and none but the brave can hope to take the jumps without mishap and finish near the head of the parade.

Land Boy, owned by Augustus F. Goodwin, is the favorite in the Challenge Cup. The horse carries the heavy weight of 162 pounds. Land Boy was undefeated in hunter races last year and has been successful this season. He won the Challenge Cup in '29.

Madrigal Favorite in Fourth Race

The secondary feature of the afternoon is the fourth race, the 11th running of the Chamblet Memorial 'chase. Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Madrigal II has a good chance to win in this race.

Miss Dorothy Neyhart's Iollan and Bangle, of the Dorwood Stables are a pair of splendid racers over the brush and should make a fight of it with Madrigal II and the others entered.

There are 25 nominated for the [illegible] but it is probable that less than [illegible] of these will start.

In the opening event of the day, the Millwood, 19 horses have been entered. Mombasa of the Dorwood Stables and A. F. Goodwin's Ort[illegible] Son Clover and [illegible] owned by G. H. D. Lamson, are strong entries and will make the race interesting.

In the other races of the program, strong fields are entered and the competition should be as fine as anyone could desire.

The course at The Country Club is fast and in perfect condition. Improvements have been made in the track and steeplechase courses each year since the Clyde Park meet was revived in 1926, after a ten year lapse.

Thousands of Fans Will See Races

The racing at the Eastern Horse club meets has been as good as any in similar affairs of the country. Many thousands of fans will throng to Brookline this p. m.

The meet is the only real saddle horse racing of the year in Greater Boston and so attracts the many horse lovers who have no other opportunity to watch the valuable horses flit around the track and over the jumps of the steeplechase course.

Big Field in Open Sharon Tournament

Sharon's open tournament attracted a nice field yesterday, and with pleasant weather today the entry for the annual event should be highly satisfactory to the tournament committee of this delightful organization.

The [illegible] season will [illegible] in the course [illegible] and also its fine [illegible] all of which [illegible] commented [illegible].

[illegible] four prizes this [illegible] net in the first division, comprising those handicapped from scratch to 10, and two net prizes in the second division of golfers with cards bearing handicaps from 11 to 24.

Braves in Brilliant Rally, Beat Out Cards in 10th

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

TRIBE WINS FINAL TILT BY 9 TO 8

By JOE CASHMAN

Overcoming a seven-run lead in seven innings and then tying the count in the ninth after the visitors had again gone in front in their half, the Braves went on to beat the St. Louis Cardinals in the tenth, 9 to 8, in the second and final game of their series at the Wigwam.

The contest, witnessed by an exceptionally large and enthusiastic Ladies' Day crowd, was a humdinger from start to finish. There was good and bad pitching, brilliant and wretched fielding, and plenty of hitting to keep the fans on edge for two and a half hours.

Joe Cashman

The Cards landed on Tom Zachary and Bruce Cunningham for seven runs in the first two frames. Then Ed Brandt took up the pitching duties and didn't allow a run in the next six frames.

The patrons in the meanwhile kept hitting Wee Willie Sherdel every so often with the result that they finally drove him from the box and tied the count in the eighth.

This amazed Brandt so much that he threw a home-run ball to Gus Mancuso in the ninth and it looked as though he would have to stand a defeat for his one mistake of the day.

Braves Win Out in 10th Inning

The Warriors, however, with the aid of a very costly error by Jim Bottomley, tied the count again with two down in their half and after Burleigh Grimes had held the enemy in check in the tenth, went out to win.

Jimmy Welsh found Herman Bell for a single with one down, and Maranville sent him to third with another single. Johnny Neun who had run for Sisler and scored the tying run in the ninth, rolling to Bottomley and Welsh beat the throw to the plate to end the game.

Welsh, Maranville and Spohrer were the big noises in the local attack. The popular centerfielder made two doubles and a single and scored two runs. Rabbit made a triple, a double and a single and scored twice. Spohrer made the Braves' first run with a circuit blow into the left field stands, drove in a run with a single in the fifth and came through with another very important one-base blow in the ninth.

Mancuso, enemy catcher, hit a double and a single in addition to his home run, while Bottomley made three singles.

Bottomley's error gave the Braves the tying run, but Maranville evened the count by making a miscue in the opening frame, allowing Adams, first batter, to reach.

High forced the runner and went to second when Douthit singled. Bottomley beat out a bunt and the bases were loaded. Watkins singled to score High and Douthit, and Mancuso doubled to send Bottomley and Watkins home and drive Zachary out in favor of Cunningham.

Douthit's Single Puts Cunningham Out

Sherdel opened the second by walking. Adams did the same, and High singled to fill the sacks. Douthit's single scored Sherdel and Adams and drove Cunningham to the showers. Bottomley greeted Brandt with a single, but "Lefty" fanned Watkins, caused Peel to hit a fly to Welsh, on which High scored, and caused Farrell to do likewise, after walking Mancuso.

From then until Mancuso hit his homer, the enemy never threatened to tally.

TECH ARRIVES FOR REGATTA

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 14—Coach Glendon made some changes today in his Columbia crew, and when the varsity took to the Hudson river for the afternoon practice row Bill Sanford, stroke, and Al Triska, 4, were absent from the line-up.

At the stroke oar was Bill Blesse, veteran 6, instead of Sanford, who has paced the New Yorkers to two victories this year. In the place of Triska was Eddie Lozier, now apparently assured of a place in the first boat.

Glendon who is preparing his oarsmen for the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta on June 26, made no promises for his newest combination.

"It's an experiment," he said. "If it makes good, all right, it will stay. If it doesn't—well, more shifts will be in order."

The Columbia mentor placed his yearlings aboard the coaching launch today and let them take their workout by watching the efforts of the other boats.

Tomorrow promises to be the big day in the highlands. M. I. T., Navy, California and Cornell are scheduled to appear in camp, with Washington and Wisconsin arriving Monday.

The M. I. T. "circus tent" was pitched today on the dock near the Navy boat house. The tent will be the river headquarters for the Massachusetts oarsmen, who will live at Vassar Inn, near Vassar College, while in training.

Arnold in Motor Race at Altoona

Altoona, Pa., June 14 (INS)—Sixteen drivers were awaiting the starter's gun in the annual 200-mile automobile race here today. Among them were Billy Arnold, winner of the Memorial Day Indianapolis race, Shorty Cantlon, [illegible] Stapp and Lou Moore.

N. Y. Fight Pictures at Keith-Albee

The first moving pictures showing in New England of the Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling fight, which ended in the latter winning the heavyweight championship on a foul, are running, starting today, at the Keith-Albee Theater.

The much-discussed foul blow is very evident and it is left to the discretion of the fans to judge for themselves whether the punch was actually foul.

The pandemonium after the fight is heard distinctly, the yelling and whistling of the fans reverberating through the theater.

Germans Disappointed by Result of Battle

Berlin, June 14 (US)—An elation toned by disappointment was the keynote of German sports writers' comment on Max Schmeling's New York victory over Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight championship of the world.

The general opinion is that the decision of the ringside judge, Harold Barnes, yielding the bout to Maxie on a foul in the fourth round was decidedly "fair but unfortunate."

There is no stint of praise for the referee's public fairness toward "a foreigner," but the writers sense a certain hollowness in the triumph of the first German citizen to hold a world's boxing title.

Both they and the fans, however, are convinced that Maxie could have trimmed Sharkey had the bout gone the limit. They point to reports of how the American failed to stagger their champion with his best, Schmeling, despite the beating he suffered continuing to carry the fight to Sharkey.

Peter Elk, president of the German Boxing Commission, compares the fight to the course of the fight Maxie put on with Paolino Uczudun last year.

"It is quite possible that the middle or the end of the fight would have looked quite different. Schmeling was not in his his full fighting power, having been seriously ill before he went to America.

"Maxie didn't have the proper time to prepare for Sharkey. You can be sure that the Schmeling of his future fights will be quite different from the Schmeling of June 12."

German Press Wants Max to Decline Title

Berlin, June 14 (INS)—That Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, should decline the title as a "great gesture of sportsmanship," because he won on a foul, was the suggestion put forward by some German newspapers today.

The controversy over Schmeling's right to the title is being watched with intense interest here.

Shawmut Bank Wins From Elwell, 12-9

Shawmut Bank nine defeated Whitney, Elwell, 12 to 9, and Gurnett & Co. swamped Weld, Grew, 16 to 3, in the only games played in the Bankers and Brokers league last night. The former contest was a free-hitting encounter with the efforts of the losers deciding the outcome. Tom Conroy, former High School of Commerce boy playing for Elwell, was the individual star, getting three hits and handling 10 chances in the field without a slip.

The other contest was another free-hitting debacle with George Owen of Weld, Grew hit safely in his four times at bat, getting a double and triple, while Alden of the same team duplicated this feat.

Eliots Play Roxbury Ball Team Today

This afternoon the Eliot A. C. will meet the strong Roxbury Pirate Club at the Marcella st. playgrounds, Roxbury, in a Boston Park Department League game.

Manager Billy Nyhan of the Eliots will start Heinie Welchlin on the mound with Bill Sheriff on the receiving end.

Mrs. Hucknall Is Connecticut Champ

Waterbury, Ct., June 14—Mrs. Thomas Hucknall of Woodway Club, Stamford, defended her State golf championship title yesterday by defeating Mrs. Hazel P. Martelle of Hartford, 3 and 1, in the final 36 holes match. Mrs. Hucknall also was medalist.

YOUNG GIRL IS BRITISH HOPE

London, June 14 (INS)—Miss Betty Carstairs, daring young Englishwoman and Britain's sole remaining hope in the international speedboat races to be held in Detroit in September, sailed for New York aboard the Cunard liner Berengaria today.

With the death of Maj. Sir Henry Segrave in a speed test at Lake Windermere yesterday, Miss Carstairs remains the only British contestant in the great international event.

Sox Play All Stars at Russell Field

The Cambridge White Sox will be tested tomorrow afternoon at Russell Field, North Cambridge, when they cross bats with the famous Joe Gilmore's All-Stars at 3 p. m. Gilmore has banded together a most formidable nine. It is composed entirely of former minor league players. Bill Rose or Eddie Dyer will start for the White Sox. Jim Dudley, former Harvard backstop, will catch.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

CANOE RACES ON HOLIDAY

The fourth annual 26-mile canoe Marathon on the Charles river will be conducted Tuesday, starting from Medfield at 11.30 a. m. The course will run through Sherborn, Natick, Wellesley, Needham and Dedham, with the finish post off the Spring st. bridge, West Roxbury.

Fifty entries have been received for this event, among the foremost being Howard Chapin and Edward Hall of the Quinton Delta Canoe Club of Waltham; Francis Bingham and Leo Volk; Harry Amos of the Samoset Canoe Club, West Roxbury, Gerald Mosher, Xavier Colon and George Higgins, Crescent Canoe Club of Waltham; John Soanks and Joe Lillis, Nite Owl Club, West Roxbury, and C. L. Knight of Dartmouth College. These competitors finished in the first 15 last year and have been training long and diligently.

Competitors will have two carries during the Marathon, one at the South Natick Dam of 100 yards and the other at Charles River Village of about 150 yards. It is at these carries the competitors have a chance to straighten out their cramped muscles.

The Samoset Canoe Club has entered two teams, Nite Owl Canoe Club three teams and the Crescent Canoe Club two teams. The teams making the most number of points will win a leg on the Gov. Allen three-leg team trophy.

The race will be held rain or shine at 2 p. m. Spectators will be entertained by novelty water sports and diving exhibitions at Spring st. bridge while waiting for the Marathon to finish.

The prizes will consist of five trophies and cups and like number of gold, silver and bronze medals. There is also an individual three-leg trophy donated by former Gov. Fuller and Gov. Allen's team trophy. Suitable cups will be given for the water sports.

Officials of the American Canoe Association will act as judges.

RED SOX LOSE TO BROWNS

St. Louis, June 14 (US)—For eleven innings the Red Sox and the Browns played the kind of ball that is rarely seen on a diamond nowadays, with the Browns finally winning, 1 to 0.

Rip Collins pitched sterling ball, allowing four hits, while Milton Gaston was almost as good, handing out seven.

BRITISH OPEN ON MONDAY AT HOYLAKE

The time draws near when the villages that lie along the Irish Sea and at the mouths of the Dee and the Mersey in the vicinity of Hoylake, England, will be alive with excitement. For on Monday the greatest golfers of the world will be gathered at this historic links to vie for one of the foremost prizes of golfdom, the British open championship.

Not in many years has the Hoylake course experienced such congestion as probably will be its lot when the British open gets under way, for on the scene, all primed to take his second British title of the year, will be no less a personage than Bobby Jones, who recently captured his first British amateur title. And wherever Bobby goes, there goes the crowd. St. Andrews, scene of the amateur championships, was host to the greatest crowd in its history during the week that Bobby was mowing down the contenders, and the scene of fairways flooded with humanity is expected to be repeated at Hoylake.

Hoylake, while never a set-up even for masters of the brassie and niblick, was a tougher test when the British open was held there in 1924. At that time the course measured only a good long brassie shot less than 7000 yards. For the 1924 tournament several holes had been altered, both in length and character, and some changes have been made since then.

For the 1924 struggle, the second hole was converted from a straight stretch of fairway to a disconcerting dog-leg. The seventeenth, which also used to be a straight, if narrow, path, received a twist to it. However, there were some compensations for those difficulties. Bunkers which used to catch long drives from the second tee were removed and the bunker that caught many an approach to the sixteenth was eliminated. The famous short eleventh, "The Alps," though not as short as it once was, no longer was a blind hole.

The course for that championship measured 3290 yards for the first nine and 3460 for the last, a total of 6750, with a par of 38 out, 38 in, for a total of 76.

The coming battle for the prized trophy at Hoylake recalls the brilliant victory of Walter Hagen on the English course in 1924. When Hagen captured first place from a formidable field that year, it marked his second triumph in that event, he having won the open two years previously at Sandwich.

Diamond Pick-Ups

These Cardinals have flossy first names and we don't mean maybe. There are, for instance, Delmar Watkins, Taylor Douthit, Homer Peel, Sylvester Johnson, Oscar Seimer, Herman Bell, Flint Rhem, Earl Adams, Ernest Orsatti and Jesse Haines. Try to tie that list.

"Death Valley Jim" Scott, former White Sox hurling ace and latest acquisition to the National League umpiring staff, looks like a million dollars calling 'em at first base.

He is in a position to see every play, makes up his mind at once, announces his decision and that's all there is to it, as far as he is concerned.

That's the way to officiate. Would that a few more would learn how instead of running about like a hen with its head chopped off every time there is a close decision to make.

Dan O'Leary, world's famous pedestrian, will make his annual visit to the Hub tomorrow afternoon, when he will walk six times around the bases at Braves Field before the start of the ball game.

The 90-year-old walker has been traveling around the base-paths and highways of this country and Europe since 1864 and can walk almost as long and fast today as he could when he won his first championship in Ireland, 66 years ago.

He's one of the age's greatest marvels and could probably help baseball players' legs more than any of the high-priced trainers who are employed.

Ed Brandt's cross fire had Delmar Watkins, rookie Cardinal fly-chaser, completely bewildered. He fanned three times in a row while the Tribal southpaw was working and lost so much confidence that he again was whiffed by Grimes in the tenth.

run while his mates were scoring

Brandt, instead of Grimes, actually deserved to be credited with the victory, but he was lucky that he wasn't charged with a defeat. For although he allowed but one seven, that home run by Mancuso in the ninth broke a 7 to 7 tie and if the Tribe hadn't tied the score again, Brandt would have had to suffer the loss.

Bell, losing St. Louis pitcher, had to throw only one ball to make it his game. He went in with nobody out and a man on third in the eighth and the score 7 to 6 in his favor. Maguire hit the first ball he threw for a sacrifice, which scored Maranville with the tying run.

HEARST RIFLE WINNERS GET MEDALS

Washington, June 14—Thirty R. O. T. C. cadets from various high schools, universities, colleges and military academies throughout the country will arrive in Washington tomorrow as guests of William Randolph Hearst for a several days' visit.

During this time they will be presented with medals as winners of the Hearst rifle competition.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will present the medals at the War Department Monday and later in the afternoon the entire group will be received by the President.

The party includes not only the winners of the competition, but several rifle coaches, Herman Black, representatives of the War Department, and Jesse Krueger of the Chicago Evening American.

The Hearst trophy competition has been conducted under the auspices of the War Department, with ranking officers in each locality acting as judges. The targets were examined and final selections made by Maj.-Gen. Frank Parker, commanding officer of the Sixth Corps Area, designated as principal referee.

Richard H. Taylor of the University of Missouri, was the individual winner in the college and university class, with a score of 197 out of a possible 200. The North Dakota College of Fargo, N. D., won first honors as a team in this class.

In military academy division the Missouri M. A. repeating its past record of two successive wins took first place with a score of 960 out of 1000 points. The Western Kentucky State Teachers College won the second leg on the national junior cup by finishing first with a score of 947 out of 1000.

Nearly 500 teams, the largest in the history of the competition, took part in the matches.

Big Opening for Revere A. A. Nine

An elaborate opening for the Revere A. A. in the Hub Twilight League is planned for tomorrow when the team meets the Jamaica A. A. at Curtis Park, Revere.

The American Legion band will head a parade of the ball players from the City Hall, through the streets of Revere, to the ball park, where the trip will be made to the flag pole at centerfield for the flag raising. Mayor Andrew Casassa and Senator Conde J. Brodbine will form the battery when the first ball is thrown up.

The parade will start at 2.30 o'clock and the ball game will get going at 3 o'clock. Manager Myette will have Plaguer of Bates College back at third base.

England Wins Wightman Cup From America, 4-3

AMERICA'S BEST WHO LOST WIGHTMAN CUP TODAY

SARAH PALFREY, who lost to Miss Mudford, 6—0, 6—2. Her defeat came as a big surprise for the Boston girl was looked upon as a winner.

HELEN WILLS MOODY defeated Miss Watson, 7-5 6-1, to give America the lead.

HELEN JACOBS, who tied up the Wightman cup series by conquering Joan Fry, 6—0, 6—3.

WILLS-JACOBS LOSE FINAL DOUBLES

never-to-be-forgotten tournament in which the advantage see-sawed back and forth from the Stars and Stripes to the Union Jack, and with the ultimate outcome a toss-up until almost the final service.

The score had been three-all at the time the doubles teams took the center court before an enthusiastic gallery of more than 15,000.

Helen Jacobs Tops Joan Fry, 6—0, 6—3

Helen Jacobs, flashing star of Berkeley, Cal., defeated Miss Joan Fry of England, 6 0, 6 3, in the opening match.

Miss Jacobs' fierce driving and cannon-ball service proved too much for the British player, although Miss Fry put up a gallant fight in the early stages of the second set. Miss Jacobs attacked the net in the latter part of the match and rendered her British opponent powerless.

Miss Jacob's victory made the match score two all.

Miss Jacobs and Miss Fry took the center court for the first match of the day shortly before 2 o'clock. The weather was perfect and a half-holliday crowd of more than 1[illegible],000 was on hand for the occasion.

[illegible] showing of Miss Fry [illegible] the California girl [illegible] the first set to win, 6 0, from Miss Fry.

Miss Jacobs was playing a superb game, and at this stage of the proceedings Miss Fry couldn't compete with her.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, world's champion for three years, was extended to the limit in the opening set of a match with Mrs. Phoebe Watson of England but came through [illegible] 7 [illegible] 6—1 [illegible] the [illegible] matches [illegible] Wightman [illegible]

Sarah P[illegible] by Un[illegible]

Miss [illegible] youthful Boston [illegible] 6—2, to square the Wightman Cup tennis matches here at three-all after Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs, by winning their matches, had brought American from a trailing position into the lead.

The English girl overwhelmed Miss Palfrey, who failed to reproduce the splendid form she had shown in the doubles match yesterday. The large American contingent in the stands was keenly disappointed over the Boston girl's showing, as it had been hoped she would cover her youthful self with glory by winning the match which would have given America victory and allow the coveted cup to remain in the United States another year.

Miss Palfrey frequently double-faulted on her service, and played a faltering court game. She tried to play close to the net throughout, and time after time Miss Mudford, playing a swift, speedy game, volleyed past her.

Phyllis stood on the base-line and returned everything Miss Palfrey put over, generally to the latter's discomfort and disadvantage. The first set was really a walkover for the youthful English girl, for one of her sizzling volleys after another went zooming past Miss Palfrey, who seemed utterly unable to solve the baffling mystery of her opponent's placements.

Big Benefit Game at East Boston

A benefit game that promises to afford some stellar baseball will be played next Friday evening at American Legion Park, East Boston, when the Holy Name Society of the Sacred Heart Church and the East Boston All-Stars clash.

Proceeds of the contest will be devoted to Frank Doherty, star first baseman for the Holy Name team, who injured his leg while sliding into a base.

Holy Name has a long list of victories which the All-Stars hope to break. The All-Stars will have such prominent players as Dick Cook, captain-elect at Northeastern; Johnny Messina, who tried out with the Eastern League; Paul McCann, Georgetown; George Kelley of the Bankers' League; Honey and Hookey Murphy, Johnny Murphy, Tacks Connell and Duke McIntyre of Boston College.

California, Navy and Tigers in Race

Princeton, N. J., June 14 (INS)—California, Navy and Princeton were to clash here today in the last middle distance race on Lake Carnegie this season.

California's last appearance here in 1921, saw the Tiger crew set the present course record for the mile and three-quarters, 8.53 4-5.

Men's State Net Singles Tourney Opens Today

The 37th annual lawn tennis tournament for the men's State singles championship will open today at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill.

The play will start at 2 30. Two rounds are expected to be completed today. The third round will be played on Monday and the finals should be reached with two more rounds on Tuesday, the holiday.

The finals are likely to be held over until Saturday afternoon as has been customary in the past few years.

E. Mauran Beal and Frank Luce, finalists of a year ago, and Barry Wood, famous Harvard athlete, who have been prominent for the past few years, are not expected to enter.

Beal and Luce met in the final bracket last spring but [illegible] was stricken with appendicitis and had to forfeit his chance for the title.

Lawrence B. Rice, former state title winner, Malcolm Hill and W. L. Breese, of the Harvard net squad, are three of the likely winners in the coming tournament.

SALEM WINS THIRD IN ROW

Winning their third game in as many played this week, the Salem nine of the New England League defeated the Portland Mariners, 8 to 5, largely due to 11 free passes from Portland pitchers, which were made effective by the Witch City aggregation.

As well as getting these free tickets to the initial sack, Salem also managed to collect nine hits from Abbott, the Portland pitcher, all coming in three innings. Poor fielding behind him didn't help the Mariners, and Scully, the relieving pitcher, found a tough assignment ahead of him.

Timely hitting helped Salem a great deal, Griggs, their burly backstop, being one of the factors of their attack in getting a double and single to drive in three deciding runs. Scholz also featured for the Witch City team getting a double and a single, scoring three runs.

Although Portland collected 13 hits from the combined offerings of both Salem pitchers, Redder and Bishop, they failed to come through in the pinches. Stack continued his terrific hitting, smacking out a homer with two men on bases. Snyder of Portland also accomplished some great hitting getting a double and two singles in four times at bat.

The Manchester Blue Sox, with Frank Bennett doing the mound duty, defeated the Lewiston Twins in a 4-to-1 decision. Manchester getting six hits to the Twins' two.

$150,000 Athletic Building at Colby

Waterville, Me., June 14 (AP)—Colby College today dedicated its new $150,000 athletic building as a part of the annual commencement week ceremonies.

The building, which encloses an area 175 by 150 feet is high enough to permit baseball and football practice. The hard dirt surface of the field is surrounded by a cinder track.

Charles F. T. Seavern, class of 1901, of Hartford, Ct., in behalf of the contributors, presented the structure to the college.

SPENCER MAKES DEBUT TONIGHT

Freddy Spencer, American sprint champion [illegible] is a motor pace follower at the Revere track tonight when Nat [illegible] stages a [illegible] race with five riders entered.

With a fair night one of the largest crowds in years is expected to see the races, for all are anxious to see how Spencer goes behind pace.

Riding against Spencer tonight will be Al Letourneur, the Frenchman, Frankie Keenan, Revere boy, who won the only race at the beach oval this year, Larry Gaffney, Irish champion, and Anthony Zucchetti, brother of Franco, who is riding his first year behind pace.

Spencer is favored by many to win the paced title this year from Franco Georgetti, who has won it so many times in succession that it is becoming monotonous. Spencer has already beaten Georgetti in Newark, but in turn was beaten by the Italian in New York. Neither of them has much on the other.

PAIR SEEK BOUT WITH CHAMP

Chicago, June 14 (US) A challenger for the heavyweight championship, won last night by Max Schmeling, is expected to emerge next Wednesday night from the battle here between Otto Von Porat and W. L. (Young) Stribling.

Von Porat, reputed to have the hardest punch in fistiana, when and if it lands, has appeared in some impressive fights of late. His most recent victory of consequence [illegible] Philadelphia [illegible] followed by a decision [illegible] Tuffy Griffiths.

Stribling, the Georgia heavyweight, has been up among the first fight contenders for some time, and while a clever boxer never has shown quite the fighting ability to become a runner-up for the championship.

On his most notable try, when he fought Jack Sharkey in Miami last year, Lou Magnolia gave the decision to the Boston gob although the margin of victory was not such as to distinguish Sharkey.

Extend Deadline in National League

New York, June 14 (AP)—By special dispensation from the league president, John A. Heydler, the deadline for exchange of National League players [illegible] June 15 to midnight, Monday, June 16.

A meeting of the National League will be held at the offices of the National League Monday at 11 o'clock. Several 11th hour trades have been reported brewing and the pot may begin to boil in the extra inning ordered by the league.

Major league rules provide that assignments of players from one club to another shall not be made from June 15 to the end of the championship season except by the waiver route.

MISS HARD-BOILED by Jane Dixon

Raquel Poses and Makes Friends With Wife of a Powerful Client

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The exotic beauty of Raquel Rolos, half-Spanish and half-American, attracts the attention of the famous Alphonse Courbet, who engages her as a model to go to Paris. Meanwhile he instructs her in his New York salon in the art of wearing beautiful clothes. Heretofore Raquel, who comes from a desert town in Arizona, has worn only home-made garments.

Chapter 16

On the third day of her apprenticeship as a model, Raquel had shown such an aptitude for the work that Alphonse, in a ferment of enthusiasm, announced he would entrust her with an important mission.

"You shall accompany me to Park ave.," he said, mentioning a number in the most exclusive section of the street which for the time being, is the Happy Hunting Ground of the Elect. The Promised Land of those newcomers who campaign deliriously for even an honorable mention on the Social Ticket.

"In Park Avenue," Alphonse continued, "lives a most important client. The most important client of Chez Alphonse. Perhaps I had her in the back of my head when I employed you, ma petite. She must have been very like you, once. We go to exhibit to her, privately, the new models. You shall show them, chere Raquel, and this so unlovely goose shall choose many."

Alphonse shook with enjoyment of the clever trickery he was about to perpetrate.

"Are you sure I will do?" Raquel asked dubiously. Suppose she should fail to please this important client? She might then be dismissed. There would be no Paris. "It's all so new to me."

"You can be perfect, if you will." Alphonse nodded like one who is convinced he has made a wise decision. "The client now cultivates your type. Last year she followed the school of Titian. Such reds I have never seen in a coiffure. This year she elects the exotic. With her face—I tell you the transformation is fearful and wonderful to behold. But you shall see for yourself."

Graceful Poses

Raquel Is Pleased

All afternoon in the private salon of Alphonse, Raquel swayed or strutted or fell into graceful poses while the dresses she wore were rejected or sent away to be packed in trunks. Later the trunks would be transported to the Park Avenue home of the important client where they would be unpacked by an expert and their contents hung in order for the private showing.

Promptly the next morning at eleven, the town car of Alphonse—it was a triumph of French artistry, immaculately black with onyx and silver fittings—drew up at the door of a formidable grey stone pile on Park Avenue. Raquel wondered why they were alighting in front of this public building. Surely from its extent, it could be nothing less.

They were whisked upward in an elevator that seemed to mount without sound or motion. Raquel found herself in a room as big as the lobby of the Hotel Brixton. A room with sand-colored walls, sand-colored carpets, a scattering of yawning sand-colored chairs. Through an open door she caught what she took to be a room of mirrors. The walls were lined solidly with them.

She was in the room of mirrors. Two dozen Raquels were watching her from the polished surfaces on every side. The mirrors were arranged so that they reflected a figure from numberless angles. Through an open door Raquel saw the tawn head of Emily bending over an open trunk.

"Another point."—Alphonse lowered his voice so that only she could hear what he said.—"Madame's husband may be called in to approve her choices. He is very young, very bored, inclined to be quarrelsome at times. It is essential that we please him. Our success is entirely in the hands of this young bounder Bosart."

Raquel nodded. Gave herself into the hands of Emily and her helpers. One of these helpers was an artist who worked miracles with brushes, pomades, powders, lotions, creams, rouges, perfumes.

Less than 15 minutes passed before there trailed through the room of mirrors such a vision of exotic loveliness as drew exclamations of wonder, of incredulity from Alphonse and another occupant of the sand-colored room. Raquel swathed in flowing lengths of flesh chiffons edged with the costliest chinchilla. The sable smoke of her hair rising above a calyx of flesh pinks and mist-greys. The pallor of her skin luminous in its clarity. The scarlet curve of her lips atremble. Her black eyes twin jewels of excitement and desire to please.

Can't Be Real!

Raquel Is a Vision

"By heaven! Alphonse," Raquel heard a voice gasp, "the creature can't be real!"

Slowly Raquel turned her head toward the speaker. As a lily might turn its face to the sun. She felt a prickly sensation. The sensation of one who, unsuspecting, takes hold of the handles of an electric battery.

She was gazing at a caricature of herself. A caricature at once horrible and pitiable.

"Come here, my dear," said the caricature. "I've got to touch you before I'll believe you are real. Don't be shy. I am Mrs. Bosart."

"I—I—thought I was seeing myself," breathed Raquel, still bewildered.

Had she schemed for days, Raquel could not have hit upon words more gracious, more grateful to the client of Alphonse.

Mrs. Bosart pounced on her with a little cackle of delight.

"Do you realy think we look alike?" she asked, tilting her head to one side in absurd attempt to be coy. "I wondered—but you caught the resemblance at once."

Raquel was getting a close-up of the caricature now. The woman's face was ravaged as a battlefield over which all the armies of beauty had waged their battles and gone down to defeat. The skin was stretched so tautly over the bone and flabby muscle that it seemed it must part.

"I tell Elsworth—my husband—Mr. Bosart—there's no use of his denying he likes pretties. Else why should he have married me?" the woman cackled at her own tragic humor. "That flesh pink is just the thing for our type of dark beauty. So youthful. We must never forget to accentuate our youth, must we? Just rest here a bit, my dear. Alphonse, don't you dare change her now! Promise. I'll go and fetch Elsworth."

Heart and Home

-By BEATRICE FAIRFAX-

Marry for Love Only

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Whom should I marry, the man I could reform, the one who loves me and I could make happy, or the one I would be happy with? The first one, if I married him, would give up the crowd he now goes with, who got him to drink and get him into trouble. The second one says he loves me, and I believe I could make him happy if I married him, but I cannot make him stop drinking or give up his crowd.

The third I love, and he loves me; he does not drink. BABE.

Dear Babe: Never marry a man for any reason but love. They do say pity is akin to love, but it's a poor beginning for marriage. Marry the man you love, and who will be good to you. The evidence is all against any woman being able to reform a man by marrying him.

How Can She Win Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man who will not go out with me because I'm home talent.

What can I do to make him overcome that?

He took me back and forth to work and then turned around and went with my girl friend because she isn't home talent. L. E. P.

Dear "L. E. P.": Please explain what you mean by "home talent." How do you know that is his reason? A stamped envelope with more complete information will bring a prompt reply.

How Encourage Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 15, and very much in love with the brother of a girl I know slightly. This boy is 19, and very shy. He has taken me out once or twice, but does not come to see me regularly. What do you think I should do to encourage him? HAZEL.

Dear Hazel: Encouraging your shy acquaintance ought not to be too difficult a matter, Hazel, since you know his sister. Invite them both to come to your house when there are to be other young people there. Perhaps his shyness will thaw over a game of cards. Some shy boys like to be invited to girls' homes while others are made shyer by it. I am afraid I cannot guarantee any program to work satisfactorily.

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer all love problems sent in by readers.

This Day in Our History

This is the anniversary of the death June 14, 1801, of Benedict Arnold, who tried to deliver West Point to the British. After his flight to England he was practically an outcast among those to whom he sold himself.

Chapeaux for Cherie -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

You boys' heads may be going around from getting glimpses of fashion articles, insinuating "ads" in the daily newspapers, and the shreds of conversation of your girl friends on millinery going around with WORDS. But girls' heads are clear on the subject, you can assure yourself. YOU may be in a daze with "exotic lace," "linene," "galyak," "baku," "pagdala crepe," "shantung straw," "celanese," "grosgrain, ballibuntl, horsehair!" But the girls are not.

They know what is what for the dear little head. George may be calling celanese Pekingese! But Georgette has them all docketed on her little pink, or is it Nile, orchid or Chinese red fingertips.

At last, after a long struggle, for girls were really tired, TIRED, of the undying cloche, it has really passed on. "More headroom" is the slogan this year, and it feels fine, thank you. There's a shallow crown that's delightful to own. Even the skull-shells are more comfortable. And there is a demureness, a chipperness, a charm, about the ribbons of organdie, the bows, the bits of flowers, the fine straw, the shapes, the lace that are oh so welcome, oh so pretty, oh so wide in choice for every type and oh so intriguing to the Georges.

Take your choice, Greta-type or dark Carmen.

Organdie Frock for Bridesmaid

By ANN ARDEN

(Ann Arden broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

ORGANDIE FOR BRIDESMAID OR "GARDEN FROCK."

THE NEWLY revived interest in organdie was inevitable in this feminine age; frocks of organdie are so cool and fresh, so in keeping with the feminine mode that everyone who knows the meaning of chic is very much aware of their charm. Anyone in search of a picture frock takes notice, for they are certain to make the wearer look most enchanting.

ORGANDIE is the material frequently employed for the crisp, summery afternoon dress, entitled a "garden frock." But even if you haven't a garden, you'll want one to wear to afternoon parties and teas.

THE FROCK pictured looks crisp enough to stand alone! If you are young and slim and chic, it's just the dress for you!

A FROCK for a bridesmaid, garden party, or just for summertime charm, fashioned of French organdie in peach color—tight bodice and full circular skirt, edged in brown, three pleated ruffles piped in brown about the hips, a circular bertha cape, piped in brown, brown ribbon, belt and tie bow, organdie chou at V neck.

A BROWN lacy straw hat is worn, with band and bow of rose, and gray-blue ribbon. Of course, this type of costume is shown in many other delectable colorings, too.

WHETHER it is due to the increased interest in trimming or to an overdose of printed fabrics, piping of contrasting color on frocks of plain organdy, chiffon, taffeta is a frequent feature of afternoon and evening fashions. Outlining the ruffles that are posed peplum-fashion over the hips or outlining a little cape, this edging is very effective.

IN A SEASON of such complete femininity it is only fitting that ribbons should be used extensively for trimming details. Bows of ribbon on hats, a chou of ribbon at the back of a poke bonnet, ribbon bands trimming coat collars and sleeves, ribbon bows at the neckline, all point to the smartness of this feminine accessory.

PINK WITH a slight mauve cast—blue with a violet overtone—and a subtly blued gray are among the tones coloring summer frocks. A new hosiery shade with smart possibilities for evening is a warm peach pink. Since femininityy has got back to its old ways of frills and furbelows, the false flower has again become a true fashion.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashion generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, or to Station WHDH.

The Beauty Box ◆ By Helen Follett

Straw hats are a help to the girl who laments because her hair is oily. They permit ventilation, and hair needs the air. Scalp massage does not make hair oilier, as popularity supposed. It brings conditions to normal because it hurries up the blood streams, on which the hair lives and has its being. [redacted]

Dressings Make Salads Different

Most of us realize that at least one [illegible] salad is a necessity for a [illegible] rather than the extra [illegible] used to be considered. Martha Lee

A French dressing is most appropriate for dinner salads as a heavier dressing often smothers the salad ingredients and absorbs their flavor. The dinner dressing, properly made and seasoned, gives a piquant touch that [illegible] never needs [illegible] be [illegible] however.

A French dressing is very simply made with an acid, oil, and seasonings. The acid may be vinegar, lemon juice, grapefruit juice, sour [illegible] juice or orange juice. And remember that there are many varieties of vinegar to vary the flavors of your dressing.

Two or three parts of oil to one part of acid pleases the average taste, although this can be changed [illegible]. For seasoning for the average taste, [illegible] tsp. of salt, ¼ tsp. of white pepper or paprika, 6 tbsps. of oil and 2 tbsps. of lemon juice or vinegar is a pretty safe rule. Mix the salt and pepper with the vinegar and when the salt is dissolved add the oil. Beat hard with a fork or an egg beater, or if you have a [illegible]. Be sure to have the oil and vinegar ice cold, as they [illegible] slightly when mixed and [illegible]. Mustard and sugar can be added to the individual taste, but usually not more than [illegible] tsp. of mustard or ½ tsp. of sugar should be used. These are mixed with the salt and pepper and dissolved in the acid.

Many people like to rub the bowl in which the dressing was mixed with a slice of onion or a cut clove of garlic, which gives just such a slight suggestion of the flavor.

For a more creamy French dressing 1 tsp. of minced parsley and 1 tbsp. of minced green pepper can be added to the plain dressing. This is called a martinique dressing.

I have some other interesting variations of French dressings—one that's called "Chiffonade" that's truly delicious, and a Parisian dressing and a Roquefort cheese dressing that I'm sure you'd like to [illegible]. If you'll drop me a line at 5 Winthrop sq. they'll come to you at once.

1 cup sugar
[illegible] eggs
1 cup molasses
1 cup milk, sweet or sour
4 cups flour
2 tsps. soda
1 tsp. salt
[illegible] tsp. each of nutmeg, cloves, allspice
[illegible] tsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup raisins

Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten eggs, molasses and milk. Sift other dry ingredients together and add gradually. Add floured raisins last. Drop from teaspoon on greased pan and bake in slow oven, 325, for 10 to 12 minutes. Currants can be arranged on the cookies to represent a baby's face.

How to Keep Well

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

Courage Aids Health

As [illegible] the body is [illegible] to great [illegible]. Unfortunately, we are not so strongly re[illegible] [illegible] disease.

Dr. Copeland

Parkinson's disease [illegible] called [illegible] persons [illegible] rarely attacks a young person. Men are more liable to have it than women.

The disease was first described by Dr. Parkinson, hence the name. The doctors call it paralysis agitans, and the common name for it is "shaking palsy." Recently I have been asked to repeat some things I have said about this ailment.

It may begin abruptly and suddenly in various muscles, or in one or more of the limbs. On the other hand it may develop slowly and progress very gradually for two or three years.

There is pain moving about, and a trembling or tremor is noticed now in the arm and again in the leg. It is apt to be located on one side of the body.

A peculiar factor in the disease is known as "Parkinson's Mask." It comes early in the disease. The eyebrows are drawn up all the time, the lips move slightly and slowly in speaking and the face looks almost expressionless. It is as if the features had been cast into a motionless mask.

There is weakness of the muscles, and general stiffness is observed. Muscular movements are made slowly and deliberately. Short, hurried steps are characteristic.

The cultivation of a philosophical mind, and patience with the annoyance of the trembling and the disturbed gait will help much in keeping physically well otherwise. There will be periods when there seems to be improvement. Unfortunately there is little to be done to relieve the symptoms.

Correct Manners

—By MRS. BEECKMAN—

Write, Don't Phone

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have received an invitation to a tea to be given by my cousin to meet the young lady who is to marry her son. The invitation reads as follows:

To Meet: Miss Ellen Brownslee
Mrs. U. Smith
requests the pleasure of your company for Tea on Saturday, June twenty-sixth from four to six o clock at Four Home Terrace
Please respond

1—Should I send a written answer accepting the invitation, or would a telephone message do?

2—Should one leave a card?

M. V.

1—A telephone acknowledgment of this formal invitation will not do at all. Always we should keep in mind that our answer to an invitation should be "in kind" with the form of the invitation. That is, when we receive an invitation by telephone, naturally we answer by telephone. When the invitation is in the third person—the formal invitation—our acknowledgment should be in the third person. Like this:

Miss Mary Lemon
accepts with pleasure
Mrs. Urban Smith's kind invitation for Saturday, June twenty-sixth at four o clock

2—Yes. Leave two cards, one for the hostess and one for the guest of honor.

EVENING New York Stocks AMERICAN News of Street MARKETS

STOCKS LOWER IN LAST HOUR OF TRADING

New York, June 14—Although urgent liquidation appeared to have been completed, the stock market ended the week in a bearish frame of mind today, unaided by the passage of the Hawley-Smoot tariff measure in the Senate.

Trading was extremely dull until the last half-hour, when selling became active. There was little in the week-end news to help restore confidence. The weekly business and mercantile reviews pointed primarily to the downward seasonal trends for this period, and farther decline in commodity prices.

PESSIMISM OVERDONE

There is a growing feeling in some quarters, however, that pessimism is being carried to extremes. Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities Co., issued a statement saying:

"My feeling is that our business, taking the country as a whole, is much better than our business psychology."

The oil shares were helped by reports of the Transcontinental-Phio Oil Merger, and displayed a relatively easier tone than other parts of the list. This consolidation is believed to be only one of several now in the negotiation stage.

Further liquidation in the Chicago Wheat Pit was insettling to stocks. July wheat dipped below a dollar a bushel to a new low for the season. Further downward revision in coppe quotations appeared, Copper Exporters, Inc. placing its price at 13.55 cents a pound. C. I. F., European ports.

The copper shares were depressed by this and unconfimed rumors that European consumers were cancelling ordes in retaliation for the increased tariff.

CEMENT IS AIDED

One stock favoably influenced by the tariff action was International Cement, which rose 2 points, reflecting the favorable aspects of the tariff of 6 cents per hundred pounds on foreign cement.

International Telephone was a soft spot, tumpling 5 points to a record low for the present shares. In the coppers Anaconda sold off 2 points to the lowest price since 1926, and American Smelting and Phelps Dodge reached new lows for the year or longer.

Shares losing 2 to 5 points including such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Johns Manville, Westinghouse Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, and Macy. American Tobacco B., American Water Works, Worthington Pump & Case dropped about 5 to 10 points.

Several investment rails reached new lows for the year including Atkinson, Chesapeake & Ohio and Illinois Central.

The closing tone was weak.

General Baking's Dividends Ordered

General Baking Corp. has declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on its $6 cumulative preferred stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 19. This is the same dividend that was declared three months ago at which time the dividend was reduced to 75 cents from $1.50.

General Baking Co., the operating subsidiary of General Baking Corp., declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share on its $8 cumulative preferred stock, payable June 30 to stock of record June 21. Plants are in Boston, Philadelphia, Allentown, Kansas City, St. Louis, Rochester, Buffalo, Baltimore, Canton, O., Cleveland, Detroit, Enid, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Hutchinson, Kan.; New Orleans, Norfolk and 17 other cities.

Mortgage Loans' Total Unchanged

Minneapolis, June 14—Total mortgage loan fundings of the Investors Syndicate for the month of May amounted to $630,424.21. E. E. Crabb, vice-president, announced today. This figure is practically the same as that of total loans funded by the company in April, Mr. Crabb said.

Loans were made on residential property in 17 real estate centers in the United States during May. The average loan was $3820 as compared to $3973 for the first five months. All loans are made on an amortization plan, requiring monthly payments.

Virginia Electric to Change Stock

New York, June 14—Notice has been received by the Stock Exchange from Virginia Electric & Power Co. of proposed change in authorized stock so that there will be authorized 3,500,000 shares of common, no-par, and 260,000 shares of no-par $6 preferred stock. Each present share of 7 per cent preferred will be exchanged for 11-6 shares of $6 preferred. Each share of $6 preferred will be exchanged for one share of $6 preferred. Each share of common will be exchanged for five shares of new common stock.

Germany and Italy Take Loan Quotas

Berlin, June 14 (AP)—The German allotment of the Young plan loan was over-subscribed nearly three times. Subscriptions today totalled 98,000,000 marks.

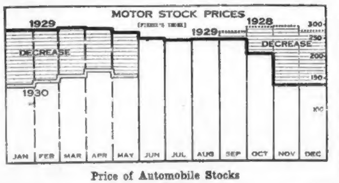
Motor Stocks Lower



Price of Automobile Stocks

By HARLOW PETERS
(Irving Fisher Service)

With the motor industry in a period of retrenchment, any down move of the stock market takes immediate effect on automobile securities. The May liquidation hit this group rather more than the average, the composite price of the issues dropping from 168.5 in April to 155.8. The latter figure is even under that for March, and shows that almost all the gain made since the beginning of the year was lost.

Buying of motor stocks has been uneven. There are little spurts when enthusiasm bursts loose, but the prices and the amount of trading done turn weak. The present practice in the industry of holding down production, and attempting to clear dealers' floors by reductions in the price of cars or making concessions to buyers individually, has deterred many from investing in the stocks. The automobile men—so far as business is concerned—are living in the future; the way is being prepared for new models, new engines, and new business.

American Surety Report Is Given

New York, June 14—American Surety Co. for 1929 reports net of $2,237,117 after expenses, taxes, loss and reserves, equivalent to $7.45 a share (par $25) on 300,000 shares outstanding at end of year, against $2,227,235 after above charges in 1928, equal to $22.27 a share (par $50) on 100,000 shares then outstanding.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Hayden, Stone & Co.—During no previous business recession have the highest grade securities sold to net such small returns as they do today. Generalizations, however, are impossible. The market has become so broad, includes so many industries, some of which may prosper, while others decline, that we think it is a mistake to speak of the market as a whole. Undoubtedly the end of the year will see some stocks lower than at the beginning—many others, we believe, will be higher.

Hornblower & Weeks—As we expected, the market changed its direction yesterday, and we look for a trading rally to continue into next week. However, such a rally is definitely of a technical nature.

Spencer Trask & Co.—With so much uncertainty prevailing, it is difficult to feel confident that further irregularity will not occur, but with the strong status of fundamental conditions constantly in mind, it is equally difficult to anticipate important declines.

F. B. Keech & Co.There is strong evidence that liquidation has about run its course.

Insuranshares

Directors of Insuranshares Corp. of New York have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.37½ a share on the 5½ per cent cumulative, convertible preferred stock, payable July 15.

CHEAP CREDIT STIMULANT TO BUSINESS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Cheap credit in the past has never failed eventually to prove itself a stimulant to business. The question today seems to be just how cheap credit should be made to bring about the desired results. Brookmire Economic Service points out that the Federal Reserve rediscount rate is today as low as it has ever been, but believes a further cut would not be entirely unexpected. There is no general agreement, however, that the rate will be cut. Many think the current rate will have the wanted results.

Harold C. Keith

Another New England industrial leader will be heard from over the radio June 21, when Harold C. Keith of Brockton, president of the National Boot & Shoe Manufacturers' Assn., speaks on "The Romance of the Shoe." Mr. Keith will speak over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Mr. Keith does not believe 20 per cent tariff protection on boots and shoes would materially affect prices, because of the highly competitive nature of the industry.

Several months ago we published an article on the necessity of cheap power to keep the wheels of industry turning. We did not make mention of the effect of cheap power on the copper industry, but its development is now expected to be a leading factor in building up Copper Range and other Michigan properties. The nearing dissolution of the Lake Copper Co. is another indication that the days of individual small mines in the Michigan copper district are gone. While Lake and other properties of its caliber might be of value in times of copper famine, they are chiefly of potential value as parts of going concerns, such as Mohawk and Copper Range. Mohawk now owns Michigan and controls other contiguous property, and Copper Range has White Pine and Victoria.

All the trade news is not bad. Jantzen Knitting Mills, world's largest manufacturer of swimming suits, reports shipments for the nine months ended May 31, 1930, of $4,036,000, an increase of $937,000, or 30.2 per cent over shipments of $3,099,000 reported for the nine months ended May 31, last year.

Jantzen's marked progress over a period of years it is stated, has unquestionably been due, in part, to the company's most effective advertising policy. The company's advertising is planned and executed a year in advance, and is used by the sales force to stimulate dealer acceptance of the product. In step with the increased volume, the company has increased its advertising appropriation every year for the past 12 years. Advertising appropriation for 1929 was more than 100 times the amount spent in 1919.

There will be the usual baseball game between two picked teams from the organization, running and all kinds of field events in the afternoon. In the evening the banquet, followed by entertainment and general dancing, will be held until a late hour.

American Hide & Leather Co. is a leader in one industry anticipating benefits from the new tariff bill. Interests in this company say passage of the tariff bill, provided it is signed by the President and becomes a law, as anticipated, should eliminate much of the uncertainty which has prevailed in the leather business and is quite likely to stimulate leather sales by domestic tanners. The foreign raw material market has probably already discounted the proposed 10 per cent duty on hides and skins. American Hide & Leather should especially benefit from the 15 per cent ad valorem duty of calf leather as imports of calf have been running about 50 per cent of domestic production. It is not considered that this duty is high enough to shut out foreign calf, but it helps largely to equalize differences in production costs in the United States and abroad, due to lower foreign wage scales.

Wage scales are substantially higher in the tanning industry in the United States than in foreign countries, but labor efficiency, output per worker is considerably greater.

Prince & Whitely state:

"It is a time, in our opinion, exceedingly propitious for advantageous switches from issues of somewhat dubious character or outlook, into more sound stocks which have the appearance of being over liquidated. For switching purposes we suggest Standard Brands, United Corporation, which is understood to have a break-up value of above $42 a share, Gold Dust, National Dairy Products, Hershey, and American Can."

BOSTON STOCK PRICES ARE IRREGULAR

Active issues were more off than up at the close of week-end trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Recessions, however, were not large.

United Shoe was up a point at 64½. New Haven Railroad added 1⅝ at 112¼. Boston Edison eased a point at 267.

Westinghouse was down 5 at 151½, and U. S. Steel off 2 at 163. American Telephone lowered 2⅛ at 215⅝.

North American Aviation was up 1⅛ at 9¾. North American Co. was down 2 at 108⅝. General Electric backed 1⅛ at 73⅝.

Boston Personal Property was down 2¼ at 21¼. Atchison ran off 2⅛ at 214⅝. Anaconda yielded 1⅛ at 51¾.

The closing was irregular.

A $20,000,000 loan to Germany is about to be concluded through the J. Henry Schroeder banking interests in New York, the Vossiche Zeitung says for "productive public enterprises." It added the loan, bound up with the Young plan, would be a forerunner of an extensive extension of credit.

Finance company will be formed, the newspaper said, to handle this credit, with reserves of about $100,000,000. The German government will be represented in the company through the Reichskredit Gesellschaft, it added, and will seek loans chiefly in the United States.

Gain in May Sales Reported by Chains

New York, June 14—A table of 82 chain store companies reporting sales for May, compiled by Merrill, Lynch & Co., shows aggregate sales of $358,653,761, compared with $344,627,451 for the like month last year. Aggregate sales of these companies for the first five months of 1930 amounted to $1,636,793,974, compared with $1,554,631,507 for the corresponding period last year.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

KEEP IN THE BANK

A. H., Stoughton—I own $20,000 first mortgage bonds, 50 shares Western Maryland, 20 each Consolidated Gas, Baltimore & Ohio, 10 each American Water Works & Electric first preferred, Chase National Bank and Irving Trust. I have saved an additional $2000 which I want to invest. How about American Smelting & Refining.

Ans.—Though American Smelting & Refining common has paid dividends at various rates from 1904, with exception of 1922, the present status of the stock is speculative. Because of lower metal prices it is thought unlikely earnings for 1930 will equal 1929, when $10.02 a share was shown. The annual rate on the present stock is $4 a share. In times like the present $2000 in cash in the savings bank is not too much. It may be useful in emergencies. Most of your stocks are excellent and the income is assured. The exception is Western Maryland. That stock, paying nothing, is a mere speculation. In fact, July 1 dividend arrears on the $7 cumulative preferred will amount to $84 a share.

SEEKS OPINION

C. G., Worcester—I shall appreciate your opinion of my securities, as follows: Ten shares each Standard Oil of New York, Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Motors, United Corporation, Niagara-Hudson Power, and Commonwealth & Southern.

Ans.—From an investment viewpoint the best stocks in your list are Standard Oil of New York and Standard Oil of New Jersey. General Motors can point to a good record of earnings and dividends. The present status of the stock, however, is speculative because of lessened sales and competitive conditions. Because there is no wide margin of earnings beyond dividends, Niagara-Hudson Power and Commonwealth and Southern are speculative, too. United Corp. pays no dividends. It is a speculation. The management has intimated that if plans for the acquisition of certain public utilities were consummated, an initial dividend of 50 cents a share would be paid October, 1930, to be followed by an annual rate of 75 cents a share commencing January, 1931.

STOCKS AND BONDS

Mrs. S. S., Boston—I have noticed your advice to others. Please suggest a plan for the investment of $15,000 hard-earned money.

Ans.—Buy $5000 each S. W. Straus first mortgage 6s, Title Guarantee & Trust 5½s and Suffolk Title & Guarantee 5½s; 10 shares each Electric Power & Light first preferred, Utilities Power & Light preferred and 20 Pennsylvania Railroad. The stocks, costing less than $3600, will bring $220 annually; the bonds, $510 annually. You should keep the remainder, about $2400, in the savings bank for contingencies.

Cal. Standard Prices Advanced

Standard Oil Co. of California has advanced price of Santa Fe Springs crude oil 75 cents to 90 cents a barrel, restoring prices to the old figures before reduction was made due to overproduction in that field.

CURB MARKET LEADERS ARE PUT DOWN

New York, June 14 (INS)—Stocks dropped in the latter half of the today's abbreviated session on the Curb market and losses were sustained in the pivotal leaders.

Electric Bond & Share was singled out for concentrated selling pressure in the utility group and it slumped for a decline of over 4 points.

Losses of like proportions were in evidence in such favorites as American Gas & Electric, American Light & Traction new and Commonwealth Edison, while correspondingly smaller setbacks were sustained in American Superpower, Middle West Utilities, Niagara Hudson Power, United Gas new and United Light & Power.

Cities Service offered stubborn resistance to the offerings, and although at no time did it show rallying tendencies, it was off but ⅛ at its low of 29⅛.

A reactionary oil group was led by a 5-point break in Cosden, while Gulf, Humble and the Standard Oil issues also gave way to the unrelenting pressure.

Investment trusts after displaying first hour steadiness were forced lower, with Transamerica easing off 1¼ points to 32⅞.

Ford of Canada A was heavily sold, dropping 2⅛ points to 33½, while the main body of miscellaneous issues tended steadily lower.

BURNER OUTPUT IS INCREASED

Detroit, June 14—The Silent Automatic Corporation expects to end the month of June with a total of approximately 300 dealers, which will be an increase of 50 per cent over the total on December 31, 1929, according to Walter F. Tant, president.

Mr. Tant made the statement in connection with the announcement that Silent Automatic had added 24 new dealers during May. This brings the total distribution of the corporation into 36 states and four Canadian provinces.

It was also stated that production at the Detroit plant continues to show an increase over last year with the new model E burner just introduced aiding materially in stepping up production and sales figures.

The Silent Automatic Corporation, with plant located in Detroit, Mich., manufactures and distributes oil burners. Preferred and common stock is listed on the Detroit Stock Exchange.

Farm Implement Makers Prosper

A prediction that the farm implement business in 1930 will exceed that of 1929 is contained in the latest analysis of the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., and is based on expectations of a wheat crop in the United States the same size as last year's and a good increase in the Canadian crop. It is pointed out that prices have shown improvement recently and are about up to the 1929 level.

Farm purchasing power will not be reduced as much as the decline in prices of farm products might suggest, since prices of the other commodities have also shown sharp recessions. Commenting on the unsettlement in farm machinery stocks, Brookmire says that the curtailment of manufacturing operations, which is the main cause of the market heaviness, is largely of a sectional nature.

Low Points Already Hit, Say Brokers

The low point of business depression and of the stock market is coinciding with the offering of German Reparation bonds, in the opinion of West & Co., expressed in the current issue of their Fortnightly Financial Review.

"It is a bold prediction," the bankers declare, "but there seems to be good warrant for it. Liquidation which has proceeded for the past six weeks has placed the stock market in a strong technical position as far as the leading issues are concerned and we are approaching the time when corporation earnings will begin to compare with the less prosperous half of 1929. In many instances, notably the motor group, demand began to slacken just a year ago."

Socony-Vacuum's Hearing June 30

St. Louis, June 14—F. L. Williams, special master to hear Standard Oil Co. testimony, stated that the hearing has been set tentatively for June 30 at the Federal Building, New York. Court order has been filed and signed by the five circuit judges. Hearing of testimony under the court order must be completed by September 10.

N. E. Equity Has Gains for Months

New England Equity Corporation reports for May net earnings available for common dividends of $31,032, or 49 cents per share on the 62,500 common shares outstanding. These earnings compare with $22,502 for May, 1929, or 45 cents per share on 50,000 shares then outstanding. Earnings available for the common for the five months ended May 31, 1930, amounted to $149,646 or $2.39 per share.

The company, which conducts a loan business, now has 19 branches throughout New England, with one in Philadelphia and another in Camden, N. J. On June 2 a new office was opened at Manchester, N. H. At the close of business May 31 the company held $2,226,160 in loans, the average being $196.

Losses from bad loans have averaged less than 1 per cent annually since organization.

Wheat Prices Off in Chicago Market

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—Wheat future prices dropped below a dollar a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade today as traders, encouraged by continued reports of auspicious weather in the domestic and Canadian wheat belts, unloaded heavily. July wheat touched 99⅛ cents a bushel an hour after the opening, and rye also struck new low prices for the season.

Sidelights of Market

Scale support came into Stone & Webster during reactions recently, although there was no evidence of an attempt to rush the stock ahead against the trend of the general list. The buying is viewed as important, however, and has attracted a following among traders.

Revere Sugar Refinery and California & Hawaiian Sugar Refining Corp. announced they would withdraw from membership in Sugar Institute unless other refiners adhere strictly to its announced credit terms. Practice complained of was that of permitting buyers an extension of time to take out sugar beyond 30-day period fixed by standard contracts.

Flintkote Co., which owns or controls more than 1000 patents, and while operating under those patents licenses other not only in the roofing industry, but in many other fields, reports that income from royalties this year has steadily increased over last year, while its general business is improving each month. Volume in May showed an increase over April of 21 per cent.

Federal Trade Commission accountant says it is "doubtful if anything will be realized" by investors in $29,000,000 securities of W. B. Foshay companies.

Grosvenor Dale Co. of North Grosvenor Dale, Ct., has withdrawn from proposed merger of New England fine cotton goods plants being projected by Bancamerica-Blair Corp.

There have been signs recently of scale accumulation in McKeesport Tin Plate. The buying has been credited to interests that had been active in the locken several occasions in the last year or two. Because of reports that operations have been running in excess of the corresponding period of last year there is a growing belief that part of the accumulation may be on the assumption that earnings will be comparatively favorable in 1920.

Everett Mills declared a liquidating dividend of $4 a share, payable June 28 to stock of record June 18.

For the fourth successive year, the New England Council's annual survey of migration of industry shows that New England gained more industries than it lost in 1929.

The 1929 survey includes 249 cities and towns (exclusive of metropolitan Boston), which report 357 new industries employing 21,478 workers. In the same communities 231 concerns, employing 17,417 workers, failed or moved away. Thus there is left a net gain of 126 industries and 4061 workers. These same communities reported a net gain in 1928 of 120 industries and 5709 employes.

A significant feature of the survey results is fact that 23 concerns employing 2420 workers moved into New England in 1929, while seven, employing 1462, moved from New England to other states. These figures are exclusive of 12 branch plants employing 831 workers established in New England by eight foreign companies.

Increase in the annual dividend rate on the common stock of the Lincoln Printing Company from $1.80 to $2 a share was voted at a meeting of directors today. A quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared, payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 22. Washington Flexner, president, announced that profits of the company for the first four months of 1930 after taxes showed a net gain of 33.74 per cent over the same period of last year.

Plans have been completed for introduction of a new form of gasoline engine starter drive radically different in principle from any previously developed. It has been developed by Alexander Dow, many of whose inventions are known in the automobile industry, and will be introduced to automobile manufacturers through Dow Gas Engine Starter Corporation of New York, a privately owned company. It avoids the use of toothed gearing and employs a novel appliance of the friction clutch principle in conjunction with automatic pickup and release. It is claimed to be silent in action. Manufacturing arrangements have been negotiated whereby the drive is to be built by a manufacturer already producing other automobile parts on large contracts. All parts are designed for screw machine production.

In proportion to current production and consumption, inventories of large corporations are about as low as in years. When industry begins to stock up, better business is bound to follow. The favorable thing is that the big corporations are prosperous and have the money to buy raw material when they want it. They don't have to borrow, as did many in the depression nine years ago. The trouble then was that inventories were large and many corporations had to borrow to protect them rather than add to them.

Treasurer Gurenson of Universal Pipe & Radiator Co. said that while the first two months of this year resulted in a loss, a small profit was shown for March and this improvement is being continued, so that the company will show a profit for the second quarter.

FORBES SEES BUSINESS AS IMPROVING

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 14—Martin J. Insull, president of Middle West Utilities Company, and influentially connected with Middle-Western enterprises, gives me the best comment on conditions and prospects that this column has printed in many moons. See if you don't agree with him. He says:

B. C. Forbes

"My feeling is that our business, taking the country as a whole, is much better than our business psychology. I think comparisons with 1928 would prove the former and our comparisons with 1929 cause the latter. We seem to forget that 1929 was a year of the greatest business the country ever knew, and far above a normal basis. It reached its peak about the middle of the year. So far this year, therefore, we have been comparing with a rising curve. From now on it will be different and our business psychology should improve.

"The fact seems to be that fluctuations—whether booms or depressions—are not as important in the long run as they appear close at hand. The trend of business activity and prosperity is gradually higher year by year, and this is more significant than the short-term changes."

Don't you like that phrase, "Our business is much better than our business psychology?"

At least in New York pessimism has been running riot. I am looking forward to getting away from New York next month to enjoy journeying across the continent to the Pacific Coast. Wall Street has its nose so close to the stock ticker that a fluctuation of a point or two in leading stocks is regarded as more important than what is happening to agriculture, the industry on which the well being of nearly one-third of our whole population depends.

Owners of American industries—the stockholders—strikingly revealed how they feel about the tariff when, on Thursday, they immediately sold stocks on the announcement by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania that he would vote for the tariff bill. It is proverbial that Wall Street can stand anything except uncertainty. Therefore, the removal of the tariff from the realm of uncertainty can hardly fail to have a helpful influence.

Doleful statements and statistics need no emphasis—they are only too common. More refreshing is it to receive a note from Pontiac that the General Motors Truck Corp. has established "a new world's record in coach production" by shipping 403 Yellow Coaches in May, worth $3,300,000. The company's previous record month, in 1926, was 267. Last year's maximum monthly total was 251.

That's exactly the kind of news this column likes to print at this time when pessimism is being so distressingly overdone.

The F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Co., with headquarters in Stamford, Ct., and half a score branches, takes exception to the statement by the head of another tree expert company that it had nothing beyond local competition and that there was no other company "organized on a national basis." The Bartlett company states that this isn't so, "as you will see from the attached financial statement, tear sheets of our national magazine advertising, list of branch offices and names of prominent clients."

Perhaps it was the fault of the writer of this column. To illustrate an entirely different point, he quoted from a statement made several years ago. In this wonderful country conditions can change greatly in a few years.

How's this for doing the handsome thing on a big scale?

During the second half of July 69,000 of the 75,000 Western Electric Company employes will go on vacation. Every employe, shop as well as office, gets a vacation with full pay after only one year's service. Last year Western Electric experimented successfully at its main manufacturing plant at Hawthorne, Ill., with a plan for concentrating vacations within a period of two weeks. "This plan is being followed this year at its principal plants; during the third and fourth weeks of July, the Hawthorne plant will be closed except for emergency and repair work, and the plants at Kearny, N. J., and Baltimore, Md., will be operated with skeleton organizations.

Here's an extraordinary fact, one speaking volumes for the relations existing between the working forces and Western Electric: Of the 30,000 employes at Hawthorne, the company's oldest plant, only 39 shop workers and 24 office workers have been on the payroll less than a year. Everyone else will receive a vacation with pay.

Vacations with pay for all classes of wage-earners have been advocated by this column for years. Happily, the movement is spreading encouragingly. Why should only collar-and-cuff workers enjoy paid vacations?

BOND MARKET MOVEMENTS ARE NARROW

New York, June 14 (AP)—The course of the listed bond market today was quiet and steady. Only a few investment issues showed any inclination to rise in price, and fluctuations were within narrow limits. Convertible issues were irregular, and foreign bonds quiet and firm.

New York Central 5s, Nickel Plate 5½s, Southern Pacific 4s and Southren Railway 4s tended higher. Utah Power 5s and International Telephone 5s were firm but little interest was displayed in the rest of the Utility group.

Trading in the new German government 5½s was extensive in volume, at slightly lower prices, with the highest in the early trading only ¼ above the offering price of 90. French 7s and 7½s were firm. Other European issues were quiet.

United States governments were dull an deased slightly.

Continental Plans Canada Expansion

New York, June 14 (AP)—Plans for extensive developments in northwestern and Canadian territory are being made by Continental Oil Co., in which Rockefeller and Morgan interests predominate, it is reported in Wall Street. The plan involves construction and acquisition of new refineries in which the Imperial Oil Co., Canadian corporation of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, is strongly entrenched.

Continental will build a large new refinery at Billings, Mont., to operate on Oregon basin crude. Less definite reports from Canada say Continental is negotiating with Detroit interests now interested in Western Canadian natural gas and oil projects for the acquisition of refineries, at Lewiston, Mont., and Lethbridge.

Cotton Is in New Low for Season

New York, June 14 (AP)—Further sharp declines in cotton market today were attributed to further liquidation of the old crop position and rather general selling of later deliveries inspired by the continued favorable average of the crop advices weakness in wheat and reports of a continued slow demand for cotton goods.

All months sold into new low ground, with July breaking to 13.85, or 55 points below Friday's closing quotation, while the new October declined to 13.15. Closing quotations were at the lowest showing net declines of 28 to 55 points.

Freeport Texas Expansion Planned

Improvements about to be effected by Freeport Texas Co. at its Hoskins Mound plant, near Freeport, Tex., will increase producing capacity of the plant 30 per cent, Eugene L. Norton, president, announced today in a report of the inspection of the company's sulphur properties in Texas recently completed by members of the new management.

Freeport Texas Co., second largest producer of sulphur in the world, has plants in southeast Texas and large holdings in both Texas and Mexico.

Bond Improvement Seen Under Way

Many factors are operating to bring about a further improvement in the bond market, according to the Halsey, Stuart & Co. quarterly review which was issued today. According to the review, a great deal of money is circulating that last year was employed in the stock market, in building and in commerce and industry. As this money accumulates, it will not be allowed to remain idle. More and more of it will find its way into the channels of investment, and, as this happens, it is almost certain to increase the demand for good bonds.

Rubber Easy in New York Trading

New York, June 14—Rubber futures were easy today. July 11.90; September 12.30; December 12.80. New contracts: July 12.00; September 12.65; December 13.10.

PRESIDENT HOOVER ON THE AIR TONIGHT

South Americans Will Reciprocate Honor Shown Them

President Hoover will speak tonight over WEEI and WBZA at 11 o'clock, when the President-elect of Brazil, Julio Prestes, tenders him a dinner at the Pan-American Union in Washington. Other speakers will be President-elect Prestes and the Brazilian ambassador to the United States, F. Gurgel Do Amaral.

Prestes is reciprocating the welcome he received when he arrived in Washington last Wednesday, June 11.

The broadcast, which will be associated with a nation-wide hookup of the N. B. C. chain, will last for half an hour.

CONCERNING RADIO
Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

—While the printers down stairs in the composing room are feeling good-natured—and we don't see how they can be after paying off their bets on that fracas over in Gotham Thursday night—it seems to us maybe it's a good time to put in another little personal mention about one of our up-an'-coming young men here in Boston.

The name of this energetic young man, as you can readily see under his picture in another column on this page (providing the news makeup man doesn't play a mean trick on us and leave it out), is Charles W. Burton, who, if we remember correctly, first saw the light of day where the salt winds blow lustily upon the innumerable little wind-mills in the front yards of Cape Cod, and where Charles sharpened his first teeth on a quahaug shell.

Having such an atmosphere for a background, it is natural that Mr. Burton should be imbued with things nautical, and especially well versed in the habits, thoughts and psychology of the inhabitants of that delightful section of our state. Surely the merited success of that well known broadcast, "Cap'n Bailey and the Widder Dyer," could not have attained such wide appeal had it been written by one other than a native.

In fact, so successful as a feature has been this radio entertainment that the wide-awake Charlie saw further possibilities in the theme, and after much tough grinding, when it would have been much easier to just crawl between the sheets and call it a day, he sprung upon a pleased and appreciative reading public a book, using the same names and characters as in the broadcasts.

As manager of the Edison station, WEEI, Mr. Burton's time is pretty well occupied, which, it seems to us, is all the more to his credit, that he carried to a conclusion the idea which he thought, and we admit, was a good one.

That's just the trouble with lots of us poor, weak humans; we've got brains, sure; have lots of fine ideas and "some day" we're just going to dig right in and show our friends what an all-fired humdinger we are. But for one reason and another we don't quite get around to it. Charles W. Burton did, though; more power to him.

And one more allusion to the Capt. Bailey and the Widder Dyer broadcast. While the continuity is excellent and would undoubtedly click with the radio audience, there is doubt in our mind if it would have quite such popular appeal if its principals were other than Bob Burlen of WEEI's staff and Margaret Burlen. There's a team.

This little item should have been in yesterday, of course. But it was so hot, and we were sort of depressed because of losing a little—well, you know, Sharkey lost, and so we just let it slide. Anyway, it didn't seem to us sitting in front of the "mike" Thursday night that the well-advertised Graham MacNames was quite in proper form. It's a tough thing, broadcasting a prize fight like that, and we can make concessions for some mistakes, but Graham did seem to insist on having things his way regardless of what the facts were. Of course, the women listeners will rise up and slay us; but us men know, don't we?

Author Manager

CHARLES W. BURTON, manager of station WEEI, and author of Cap'n Bailey and the Widder Dyer. This story was inspired by the broadcast of the same title, also written by Mr. Burton.

At the Radio Dial

OF THE MANY Flag Day radio programs, probably the most outstanding one will be presented by the D. A. R. today at 4:30 on WEEI. Henry Cabot Lodge, editorial writer for the N. Y. Herald-Tribune and grandson of the late Senator Lodge will be the main speaker. His topic is "The Preservation of Peace." William Taylor Paige will recite the American Credo and Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president of the organization will preside at the microphone.

THE GIFTED Giersdorf Sisters, harmony trio, are the featured artists in tonight's Paramount-Publix Hour on WNAC at 10 o'clock. "Broadway Revels" is the title of the presentation which Paul Ash, master of ceremonies, arranged. Marcia Freer, mezzo-soprano; Jesse Crawford, Paul Small, the Foresome Quartet, Vic Ince and Fred Vettel are other entertainers on the program.

"HANK SIMMONS' SHOW BOAT," after a short vacation, will return tonight at 9 o'clock over WNAC. Tonight's presentation is a rip-snorter, dealing with cattle thieves, sheriffs, cowboys and Indians. Since the talkies won't give out any more red-hot westerns, give the kids a break and let them in on this program.

GRANTLAND RICE and Alex Morrison, from WBZA last night, presented the first of a series of golf news and golf instructions. From all appearances this program, short in length, but long in value to golfers, will be very popular. The above mentioned gentlemen explained a puzzling phenomena. The reason golf is so popular is that from the ages of eight to 80 those of both sexes play it. It is a religion and a philosophy, a disappointment today and a hope tomorrow.

CITIES SERVICE, the old reliable, presented their 203rd concert with as much quality as their 202 preceding ones. Jessica Dragonette, who brightens up the air, sang the plaintive "Elegy" by Massenet. The Cavaliers, of whom no one tires, sang "I Still Remember." John Seagle and Jessica Dragonette blended their voices in a charming manner with their singing of "Here In My Arms."

The Hickok Hysterical Sportcast, crazy burlesque though it is, has just enough American individuality to get laughs. Last night on WBZA they tickled our gullets.

IF LOCAL FEATURES COULD graduate into national features on the wealth of their entertainment rather than the wealth of their sponsors how wonderful it would be. And the Fox Fur Trappers would be the first ones to make the grade. Last night Earl Nelson and John Herrick performed in their usual manner, which is a good deal better than some national artists do.

Tercentenary Parade in Watertown Today

Watertown is to climax its tercentenary observance today with a parade of military, naval, patriotic and civic organizations.

Starting at St. Mary's and Mt. Auburn sts. the parade is to proceed along Mt. Auburn st. to Beacon sq., and turn into Main st., to the reviewing stand. Schools will be in line with bands and floats.

Legionnaires to Broadcast

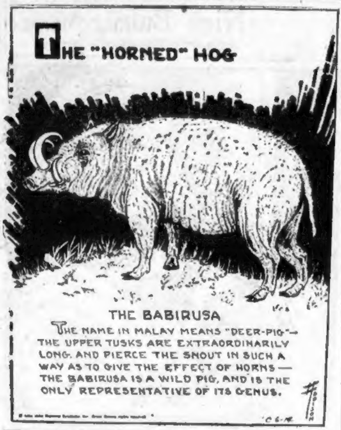
CURIOUS CREATURES

By RICHARD A. ADDISON



THE "HORNED" HOG

THE BABIRUSA

THE NAME IN MALAY MEANS "DEER-PIG"—THE UPPER TUSKS ARE EXTRAORDINARILY LONG, AND PIERCE THE SNOUT IN SUCH A WAY AS TO GIVE THE EFFECT OF HORNS—THE BABIRUSA IS A WILD PIG, AND IS THE ONLY REPRESENTATIVE OF ITS GENUS.

BOSTON PORT NEWS

By CARL MORRISON

Amos 'n' Andy may now relax. The harbor news broadcast next Monday night on the American's station WHDH has been changed from 7 p. m. to 8:15 o'clock.

We understand that Amos was very much "regusted" to learn of this new and threatening radio competition. Their lawyer was preparing an injunction against the ship news editor for daring to trespass upon the 10-minute period belonging to the famed pair.

Not wishing to steal Amos 'n' Andy's radio audience from them, the editor obtained a change in time. For half an hour from 8:15 to 8:45 o'clock, the big parade of harbor performers will go on the air.

PROGRAM FEATURES

Besides those announced yesterday, the program will include:

Piano numbers by George P. Peterson, new Luckenbach traffic representative.

Popular songs by "Al" Tivnan, export manager of the National Biscuit Co., who formerly was a vaudeville artist. David Kelleher, vice-president of H. P. Lambert Co., will accompany on the keys.

Gladys Johnstone, soprano and pianist, who studied in foreign countries, and who was classed by Mr. Clive of the Copley Players as an excellent performer.

A surprise feature will be the "Harbor Mystery Man." He will do a special radio feature. If you can guess his identity, write to the ship news editor of the American and state your opinion as to who this man is. He is known to hundreds in the harbor who may recognize his voice.

PRIZE AWARDS

To the first 20 people writing in accurate guesses, the editor will present passes to the Loew's State Theater. All next week Marion Davies will be seen in the colorful photoplay, "The Florodora Girl." Each pass will be good for two persons.

Remember, you may do business with this man. He may be your intimate friend. Listen for his voice and you may be one of the fortunate pass winners. Send your guess, with a stamped return envelope showing where the pass is to be mailed.

Other radio performers Monday night at 8:15 will include: Miss Anna G. Feely of the U. S. Shipping Board, well known radio singer; "Fitter" Fitzgerald, Longshoreman's Union president, who will sing his original song of Down in Number Three"; Harold Green, harbor songster; Johnny Hanlon and Melvin Melanson, two expert ukulele players.

P. S.—Tell Amos and Andy not to worry.

Today's Who's Who

Franklin J. McGlynn, district manager of the Luckenbach office of Boston, is the subject of today's Who's Who in the Harbor.

F. J. McGlynn

"Frank" has been in the steamship business for 20 years, in New York, Buffalo and Boston. He was the first chief clerk here for his line, which now has about 100 employes. His experience includes one year at sea.

McGlynn believes in boosting the harbor. He urges New England shippers to use the port of Boston, and has a policy of having all possible Luckenbach repair work done in the Hub. This represents hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for Boston.

His hobbies include swimming, gardening and golfing. He is in the City Club, the Elks, the Traffic Club and the Chamber Maritime Association.

"I'm an adding machine golfer," he confessed, when asked about his score.

Another hobby is his young son, who helps "unplant" the garden.

Bostonians Afloat

Sailing today from New York on the Furness Bermuda motorship Bermuda was Miss Florence Wilbur of Boston.

On the Adriatic of the White Star Line, sailing today from New York for Liverpool, are Dr. Russell H. Stafford, Miss Margaret Slattery, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Brown, Miss Mary Oline, Miss Florence N. Wilson, Miss Eleanor Curtis, Dr. and Mrs. William E. Gilroy, Mrs. Charles A. Perry, Miss Mary L. Thompson, Harry Foster, Miss Myrtle Foster and Miss Eleanor Boston, all of Boston.

Bostonians arriving in New York yesterday on the U. S. Line steamer George Washington, which carried a return group of Gold Star Mothers, are:

Mr. and Mrs. David J. O'Connor of Cambridge, Mrs. Chester A. Howe and Mrs. Edith M. White of Chestnut Hill.

Miss Mary D. Uline of Lime st., Boston, will sail today from New York on the Adriatic for Iceland, where she will attend the noted Millennial Celebration. She is project secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

On the North German Lloyd Liner Karlsruhe, sailing today from Boston for Galway and Bremen, were these Bostonians: Mr. and Mrs. William F. Handschumacher, Dr. and Mrs. Adolph Krebs of Jamaica Plain and Miss Krebs, Prof. and Mrs. G. B. Crosby, Prof. H. W. Babb of Harvard and Mrs. Babb, accompanied by Warren and Howard Babb; Mr. and Mrs. John G. Gill, Miss Frances Costello and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Costello of Brighton, Mrs. Barbara Geary of South Boston and six children.

Miscellaneous

Seamen signing up in Boston yesterday included: John Knopa of Providence, George Bowerman of Boston, Kastik Sukes of Chelsea and Edward Belasco of Boston, all headed for Russia.

The Edward Luckenback was due to arrive in Boston some time today, with arrival uncertain due to the fog. This is her first trip to the Hub since her grounding accident on Block Island last January. She will take cargo out next Tuesday. More than $303,000 was spent in repairs on this $2,000,000 freighter.

Our daily sea advice to landlubbers consists of:

"Take good care of the swab-comb, which you can usually find underneath the first mate's bunk, who will not mind your bothering him when you ask to clean it every morning and night."

Today's safety rule reads:

In all set ups, the dragging of one fall against the other without plenty of sag is positively dangerous and must be avoided.

Our "old timer" today recalls:

"I well remember how Leo Coughlin got his nickname of Castoria. He once was supercargo on the Lake Fostoria, soon after the war."

Love Note From Air Causes Plane Crash

Cornwall, Ont., June 14—The desire of E. S. Vaillancourt to drop a love note from the air to his sweetheart, Leona Lefave, cost the life of a companion and the serious injury of himself and the pilot when their plane went into a tail spin and crashed within the girl's sight. Morris Joseph Verville of Massena was fatally injured. Vaillancourt is suffering from shock and internal injuries, and Everett Richards of Syracuse, N. Y., the pilot, received injuries to his right foot.
